Hotel Funds Sought

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee was asked Wednesday for $2.5 million in emergency funds to purchase the Governor Hotel here to provide state office space and let legislators take over more of the capitol.

John D. Pauls, director of the division of planning and construction, told the committee the money would pay the acquisition and remodeling cost and still leave enough to buy some adjoining land for possible use as a complex of office buildings at a later date.

The request does not include a breakdown of costs for the project.

Sen. A. Clifford Jones, RClayton, said he did not see how the committee could talk about purchasing the hotel without having a specific offer in the request.

One committee member later remarked, "You don't give a blank check and say use the rest for repairs."

Paulus said the hotel would not satisfy all the state's needs for office space- "it would merely be a stop gap measure." Yet it would provide additional space to let some agencies, now scattered around the capital city, consolidate their offices, he said.

Dr. C. Brice Ratchford of Columbia, interim president of the University of Missouri, asked for $544,666 to avoid reducing the quality of education at the University of Missouri Medical School.

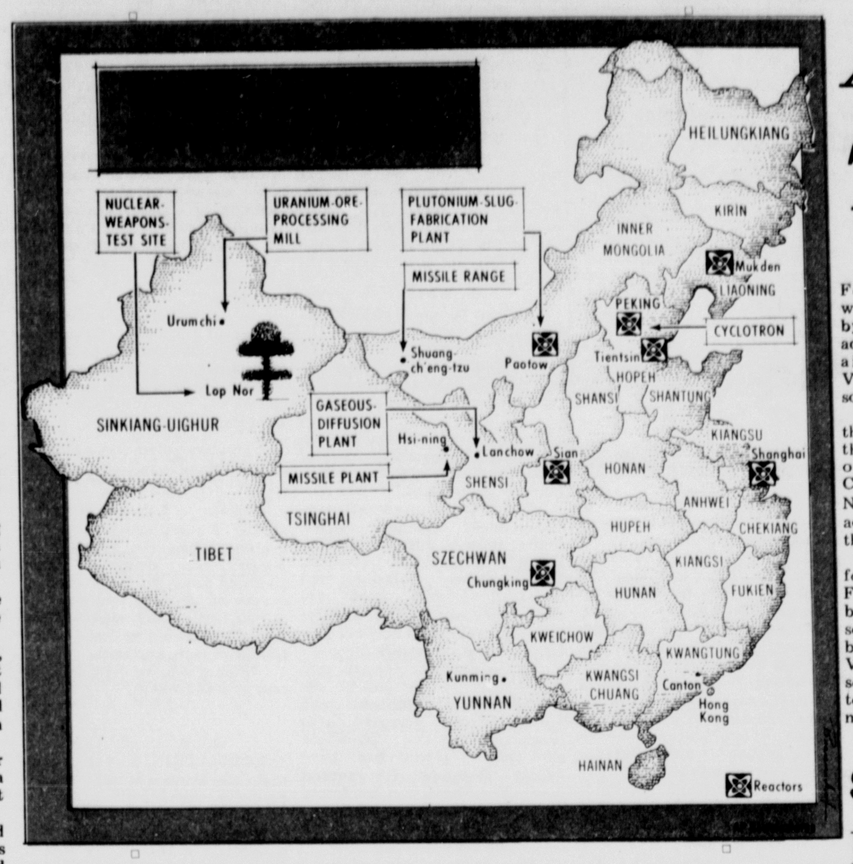

Ratchford said the money would be used to re-open a ward at the medical center and to counteract some of the drastic steps the university has been forced to take in the last six months to reduce operating costs.

"The hospital is absolutely necessary for the training of medical students," Ratchford said. "I'm not being threatening, but we are going to have to reduce the quality of our program without additional funds."

"What bothers us," said Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, "is that we put $13 million into the medical program, pay all the salaries and other costs. Then you charge $93.50 for Medicaid patients a day and you say you are still losing money."

Dr. William Mayer, medical school dean, said the state is paying for the school which is serving 3,000 students, including its 400 medical students and 200 nurses.

"We're an institution that provides care for patients who have complex or severe illnesses," Mayer said. "Seventy per cent of the money goes for salaries and wages. The kind of services we provide is more expensive than most hospitals because of the medical teaching program."

All Air Force Units Reported To Exit Vietnam by End of '72

SAIGON (AP)--All U.S. Air Force combat units are to be withdrawn from South Vietnam by the end of 1972, leaving only advisers and technicians, if the air war is sufficiently Vietnamized by then, military sources said today.

Meanwhile, the sources said, the United States is conducting the heaviest bombing campaign of the war in Laos and Cambodia in an effort to force North Vietnam "to make accommodations" and to pave the way for the withdrawal.

"Our present timetable calls for the withdrawal of all Air Force units from South Vietnam by the end of 1972," said one source. "Hopefully 1973 will begin with no U.S. squadrons in Vietnam, if everything is on schedule. But advisers and technicians will remain. How many, I can't say now."

The Sources also left open the possibility that even after all American squadrons are pulled out of Vietnam, the United States will continue to provide air support for its allies in Indochina from bases in Thailand and from aircraft carriers of the 7th Fleet.

The Sources said up to 500 U.S. warplanes from the Air Force,Navy and Marine Corps are making daily raids on North Vietnamese troops and supply route in Laos and Cambodia.

Some attacks are in direct support of South Vietnamese, Cambodian and Laotian troops fighting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong. But about 75 per cent of the raids are against enemy supply routes, depots and troops along the Ho Chi Minh trail through southern Laos.

The Sources said the effectiveness of the campaign won't be known until May, when the current dry season ends. North Vietnam makes its big movement of troops and supplies southward during the dry season because the jungle roads and trails are much less passable in the monsoon season.

Withdrawal of all U.S. squadrons in the next two years depends on three factors, the sources said:

1. The effect the campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail has in reducing North Vietnam's effectiveness to fight and to launch major offensives while U.S. forces are being withdrawn;

2. Some accommodation by the North Vietnamese in scaling down their activities;

3. Progress in the training and capabilities of the South Vietnamese air force.

The U.S. Air Force now has 30 air squadrons in South Vietnam, with a total of more than 700 aircraft and 42,200 men. No squadrons are being withdrawn during the current sixth-phase cutback of American troops that will reduce authorized U. S. strength to 284,000 men by May 1.

The South Vietnamese air force has 32 squadrons, 700 planes and helicopters, and about 40,000 men. The present goal is 50 squadrons and 1,200 planes and helicopters..

In the war, the U. S. Command reported that 50 Americans were killed in action in Indochina last week, an increase of 13 over the previous week. A spokesman attributed the rise to two air crashes that killed 14 Americans.

Another 25 U. S. servicemen died of nonhostile causes last week, and 295 were wounded in action, the command said.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 274 of its men killed and 816 wounded last week. The allies claimed 1,998 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong Troops killed.

Little ground action was reported today in Vietnam, but three grenades ripped through a theater in coastal Binh Dinh Province, killing 10 Vietnamese and wounding 19. The South Vietnamese command said the grenades were thrown by "Communist terrorists."

About 80 miles farther north, a bomb exploded in a market place, and nine Vietnamese civilians were reported killed and 22 wounded.

The incidents occurred during the four-day cease-fire declared by the Viet Cong for the lunar new year. It runs until 1 a.m. Saturday Saigon time.

In Cambodia, Viet Cong and North Vietamese troops harassed four government outposts to the west, southwest and southeast of Phnom Penh, but a spokesman said there were no allied casualties or damage.

$30,085 Grant for Police Headquarters

The city of Sikeston will receive $30,085 from the Bootheel Law Enforcement Assistance Council toward remodeling police headquarters and jail facilities.

The council last night at Malden approved grant requests of more than $68,000 for law enforcement projects in the six county area of Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, New Madrid, Dunklin and Pemiscot.

Sheriff W. J. Simmons, chairman of the council, said the action is designed to improve law enforcement and furnish help to the courts in doing a better job on probation and parole.

Bob Henzi, executive secretary of the council, said the grants were:

District 14 probation and parole office, $23,031 to provide service to the magistrate courts in Mississippi, Stoddard and Pemiscot counties.

The city of Bernie, $6,000 toward construction of a jail. Each of these grants represents 50 per cent of the total cost.

Miner, $1,658 to purchase radio and radar equipment.

Wilson City, $846 toward establishing a recreational facility as a means to better control and eliminate juvenile problems.

Bernie, $150 and Lilbourn $45 to purchase police equipment.

Henzi said that all of the equipment requests granted represent 60 per cent of the total cost. Law enforcement agencies will pay 40 per cent.

Delay Refused In Gray Hearing

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID---D. W. Gray's motion to postpone a hearing on whether he made a voluntary statement in connection with the 1960 slaying of a New Madrid county deputy sheriff was overruled this morning by Circuit Judge William H. Billings of Kennett.

Gray made the motion Tuesday because of a pending decision expected from federal court whether Gray should be discharged from custody because he was not given the hearing within 90 days. The state supreme court ruled 14 months ago Gray should be given this hearing within 90 days.

Gray has been serving a 60-year prison term for the Sept. 12, 1960 shotgun slaying of deputy Cletus Phillips, who was attempting to arrest the farm laborer at a brother's farm home near New Madrid.

Gray, object of a three-day manhunt following the slaying, took the witness stand this morning after Judge Billings made his ruling.

Gray testified he was interrogated at the highway patrol headquarters in Sikeston six hours following his arrest. Gray said he gave a 22-page statement in response to more than 300 questions. Gray said he was not advised he could have an attorney and that the statement could be used against him.

Gray said he was told several members of his family were in jail and was denied contact with them by law enforcement officers.

Gray did not recall the identity of the officers involved.

Gray said he was denied a telephone call and was not advised of his rights.

The convict testified he depended on his attorneys at the time of his trial and that he only had a third grade education. He siad he did not know he could object to the use of the statement, but confirmed his attorneys did tell that some of the questions and answers in the statement would be damaging to his case.

"But I did not know I could object to the use of it (the statement)," Gray said.

Gray was questioned this morning by his own counsel, David Blanton of Sikeston, who was appointed by the state supreme court to represent him.

Judge Billings called a recess at 10 a.m. It was expected that Hal Hunter Jr., prosecuting attorney of New Madrid county, would cross-examine Gray when the hearing resumes.

There are 12 witnesses scheduled to be heard.

Kent Grand Jury Report Tossed out

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal judge today threw out a grand jury report on last spring's Kent State University disorder but let stand the jury's 25 indictments stemming from the disturbance.

U.S. District Court Judge William K. Thomas said the special Portage County grand jury exceeded its powers by making accusations in its report and trying facts. He said jurors violated secrecy instructions in the preparation of the report.

He ordered the report to be "physically expunged and destroyed" within 10 days.

Thomas, however, overruled defendants motions for a three-judge federal panel to study constitutionality of Ohio's antiriot law. That law was the basis for most of the 25 indictments returned by the jury. Thomas said there was no evidence to substantiate claims the law was unconstitutional.

Senate Confirms Cabinet Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today confirmed President Nixon's nomination of former GOP Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton to be the new secretary of the Interior.

Morton, until today a Republican congressman from Maryland, pledged in hearings earlier this week he will use the post to try to change the nation's priorities, placing the protection of the environment on a scale with the economy and national defense.

Confirmation was by unanimous consent; no dissenting voice was heard.

China Builds Nuclear Arsenal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States and the Soviet Union still rule the nuclear roost, but China is narrowing the gap more quickly than either superpower expected.

This supposedly primitive land, which touched off its first crude nuclear blast in October 1964, then startled the world with mighty hydrogen explosion 32 months later, has placed top priority on developing a first grade nuclear weapons system.

At one time, arms experts nervously speculated that Peking might be planning a suicidal attack on one of the superpowers. But the general opinion is now that the Chinese are desperately seeking a deterrent against an attack they feel may come someday from either the United States or Russia.

At least that is the message sent forth from Peking's propaganda mills. Each Chinese test is followed by a rash of claims that Peking must take these measures to counter the "nuclear threats and blackmail" of the United States and the Soviet Union. Despite its limited resources and relatively small number of specialists in this field, China has developed an impressive complex of atomic and missle facilities. But just how far they have progressed is a question still shrouded in mystery.

Moscow gave the Chinese some help in the nuclear field in the 1950s, but after the ideological war erupted between the two Communist giants, all such assistance was halted. In 1959, Peking charged that Moscow reneged on an agreement and refused "to provide China with a sample of an atomic bomb and techincal data concerning its manufacture."

Despite this setback, the Chinese managed to set up a costly gaseous-diffusion plant at Lanchow designed to enrich the natural uranium of which the Chinese have plenty.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has stated that the Chinese began work on a ballistic missile production facility back in 1963. A major missile test range has been located near Shuang-ch'eng-tzu in the northwest, and a big warhead testing center has been established in the far west near Lake Lop Nor.

Although the number of Chinese nuclear scientists is limited, there are some outstanding ones. Some were educated in the United States or Europe before 1949, and many attended the Joint Nuclear Research Institute at Dubna near Moscow.

More than four years ago, the Chinese delivered a low yield atomic warhead by missile. In April 1970, they launched an earth satellite that was believed to have utilized an upgraded medium-range ballistic missile as a booster.

The Defense Department has estimated that the Chinese may develop the capability of fire an intercontinental ballistic missile by 1973 and have 10 to 25 in operational condition by 1975.

It has been estimated that the cost of this program ranges from $500 million to $1.5 billion a year; small potatoes by Western standards but a heavy burden on the Chinese economy.

Possession of Peking of even a limited number of ICBMs could give it the blackmail capability that it so frequently attributes to the United States and Russia.

U.S. Assistance For Spillway Area

CHARLESTON---The Soil Conservation Service, Washington D.C., has approved authorization for planning assistance to the Mississippi county spillway area, covering 99,600 acres, according to a telegram signed by U. S. Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas Eagleton in Washington.

The planning involves investigation and survey for development of watershed work plans under the authority of watershed protection and flood prevention act.

Participating organizations include the Mississippi county soil and water conservation district, Mississippi county court and St. John's Levee and Drainage District, all in Charleston.

Bill Winchester, presiding judge of the Mississippi county court, said the water drainage problem created by spring rains and backup water from the Mississippi river prompted the Mississippi county court and landowners in the spill way district to seek assistance from the federal government for aid in getting rid of the surplus water.

He said the excess water poses a problem to the crops in the area each year.

This district conservation district will provide technical assistance for the planning.

East Prairie to Vote on Bonds

EAST PRAIRIE---Residents will vote March 2 in a special election on a bond issue of approximately $425,000.

Approval of the bond issue will assure the installation of water, sewer and storm drain improvements for which the city has received a federal grant of $351,000 from the Economic Development Administration.

Plans call for the installation of a water treatment plant and a new well near the south end of the high school football field.

Two new sanitary sewer systems with individual lift station would be installed in the northeast and southeast areas.

Near the corner of Walnut and Nelson Streets, a 200,000 gallon elevated water storage tank would be erected to improve water pressure.

More than one mile of 10 and 12-inch pressure water mains would be installed to assure adequate water distribution and pressure. This would include the capability to deliver good quality water with adequate pressure to two proposed industrial sites.

The new water mains and elevated tank are designed to enable the city to expand the water system.

900 Ask Election on Liquor by the Drink

Supporters of the liquor by the drink proposal announced today that more than 900 signatures have been received on petitions calling for the issue to be brought before the voters.

Goerge Butler, manager of the Holiday Inn, said that 25 petitions are still out.

The petitioners need nearly 1,400 signatures before presenting the request to the city council.

Missouri state law prohibits a special election for liquor by the drink until after the general election in April and Butler said by that time. it is expected that the needed number will be received.

Opposition to the petitions rose quickly following first reporters of the movement. Churches voiced disapproval and waged a campaign against the issue.

When sufficient names are received Butler said the petitions would be presented to the council to assure an election as soon as possible.

More than 30 volunteers worked for tw o weeks to obtain the 900 signatures.

Bill Asks State to Share City Police Salary Load

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An effort to ease the financial plight of the cities reached the Missouri House today in the form of a bill requiring the state to pay a quarter of the cost of police salaries in all cities of 1,000 population or more.

A fiscal note attached to the bill said the cost in the year beginning July 1, would be $12,978,123.

The measure was introduced by Reps. John Conley and Johnnie S. Aikens, both St. Louis Democrats.

Two minority Republicans, Reps. George parker, Columbia, and Robert E. Young, Carthage, offered a bill establishing a permanent joint committee of the legislature to review all rules filed by state agencies or offices.

The committee would, after its review, report its recommendations to the Legislature and the House and Senate could either amend, reject or approve any rule. The committee would be composed of five representatives and five senators.

Another new bill calls for a single primary ballot with all authorized party candidates listed. The voter could vote for only one party but he would be freed of the necessity of entering the polling place and announcing the party he wished to vote for.

The State would pay the full cost, instead of 50 per cent, of distributing surplus foods under another bill. It was estimated the annual cost would amount to $694,422.

Other new bills introduced would:

Regulate the manufacture, dispensing, prescribing, administering, and compounding of any barbiturate, stimulant or hallucinogenic drug.

Make it unlawful to try to acquire barbiturates, stimulants or hallucinogenic drugs by fraud. The privileged communication between doctor and patient would not apply if the patient attempted to get a prescription of such drugs through fraud or deceit.

Base state aid to schools on enrollment instead of average daily attendance, thus sharply increasing the amound of aid the state would have to provide.

Require an accused person to notify the prosecuting attorney at least 10 days before trial if he intends to use alibi as a defense.

Give second class county court district judges a $2,500 annual increase and the presiding judge $4,500 for the duty of inspecting polling places.

Establish a commission on the retirement, removal or disciplining of judges.

Add a third judge in the 11th Judicial Circuit after Dec. 31, 1972. The circuit is composed of Lincoln, Pike and St. Charles counties.

Let utilities offer free or reduced rates to their officers, employes and certain professionals on retainer.

Bar any insurance company writing group health or accident insurance from reducing any payment because the policy holder has other insurance covering the same claim.

Ban the present requirement that an applicant for state employment must get a political endorsement.

The House advanced three bills and laid another one over when it appeared headed for fiscal trouble.

Laid over was bill that would increase the State Board of Probation and parole membership from three to five and boost their salaries.

IN WINTER'S INDIAN SUMER DAYS

Spring has been in the air these past few days. The sky's been blue, the sun warm, the earth squishy under foot. The snow that had covered the ground and the ice that had sheathed the area's lakes and streams have long since melted. There have even been a few reported sightings of that harbinger of warmer weather — the red-breasted robin.

Of course this balmy reprive from winter can't last, but that only makes it all the more savorable. As a result, most persons are not taking any chances on tomorrow. They are doing some of their midwinter chores now. Such things as washing the grime off the family car, raking the lawn or just puttering around outside the house. Actually, most of these are not "chores" in the strict sense of the word. They are more like excuses — reasons to get out of the house and stay out awhile. Nevertheless, this suggests how inviting the outdoors can be after a long cold spell.

Allen Pearson, a columnist and director of the National Severe Storms Forecast center of the weather bureau here, recently wrote about the January thaw. It is often due, he explained, to "discontinuous retrogression," which is a fancy name for a west-to-east weather pattern that stops and actually backs up and thus allows warm Gulf air to sweep up from the South.

No doubt the weather pattern will get back to normal sometime soon. After all, there is still almost two months of winter left. But these last few days have been a promise of things to come — a welcome promise however fleeting.

FOR WHO'S BENEFIT?

We note with some interest the news story reporting that President Nixon has directed the U.S. Department of Justice to "begin work immediately on streamlining the government's sporadic and haphazard code of criminal laws."

"The entire code is in dire need of comprehensive reform," Mr. Nixon is reported to have said in a memo to Attorney General John N. Mitchell. The President said that he wanted a progress report within six months.

Nowhere, so far as we can see, did the President spell out any specific reasons for the called- for reforms, except for his declaration that "a thorough overhaul of the federal criminal code is long overdue, loaded as it is with law upon law passed in the course of 200 years to meet the crisis of the moment."

One purpose in the "Overhaul," we suspect, is to streamline the wheels of justice so that our courts, now bogged down with huge backlogs of untried cases, will perform more efficiently. But some of the recommendations made by the group called the "National Commission on Reform of Federal Criminal Law" leaves us with the uneasy impression that the "solution" will be to "go easy" with the criminals with little regard for the victims of crime. For example, one recommendation of the Commission is to abolish capital punishment for "any" Federal crime. "Any," we must assume, includes the heinous crimes of kidnapping and murder. Another recommendation of the Commission is to outlaw all privately owned handguns. Since the vast majority of owners of handguns are law-abiding Americans, the effect of such a measure would be to penalize the innocent, rather than increasing the penalties of those criminals who use guns in the commission of a crime.

For too long the courts - including the Supreme Court of the United States - have followed a course of leniency for criminals. It is time to think of the victims of crime - and we hope that this is what the President had in mind, and that this will be the course followed by Attorney General Mitchell in working toward "reform."

THE FOUR-DAY WEEK

Growing numbers of American workers are happily joining the Thank-God-It's - Thursday club. Companies are turning to the four-day, 40-hour week as the most efficient use of manpower. They claim it increases productivity and reduces turnover and absenteeism. As many as 11,000 workers in about 60 firms are already on shorter work weeks.

A clear sign of the spread of the idea is the contract signed Jan. 19, 1971, between the United Auto Workers and Chrysler. It calls for the establishment of a joint committee to study the establishment of a pilot program for a four-day week for assembly line workers. Douglas Fraser, head of the union's Chrysler department, says: "We think it offers some very exciting possibilities."

The nation's third largest union – the million - member United Steelworkers of America -- has added the four-day week to its list of goals in the bargaining later this year for a new contract. Riva Poor, who has made a study of the four-day week, predicts it will "sweep the country – and much faster than the five-day week replaced the six-day week."

Virtually all America industry now operates on a four-day week for 10 per cent of the year. This is due to federal legislation that has made five of the ten national holidays fall on Monday, notes Kenneth E. Wheeler in the Harvard Business Review. While larger companies are studying the four-day week, he notes that it is most widely used in small business.

The movement to a shorter work week is by no means new. As early as the 1950s, the UAW's late president, Walter Reuther, tried to include it in labor contracts he negotiated with the automobile manufacturers. A century ago, the average American worked a 12-hour day, six-day week. Time-off from work was barely sufficient to eat, take care of personal needs and sleep.

Inhumanly long working hours gave the unions an entering wedge for building up their strength in the 19th century. The eight-hour day was the rallying cry but it was a long time in coming. In each decade between 1850 and 1900 about two hours were cut from the workweek. Four hours were dropped in each decade between 1900 and 1940, when the 40-hour workweek began becoming commonplace.

The unresolved question is just how the worker will use additonal free time if there were a general swing to the four-day week. Some analysts say that continued inflation would cause many workers to moonlight -- to hold second jobs -- in order to make ends meet. Others say it would result in a slowing of the rate of growth of the Gross National Product.

But Paul A. Samuelson, the Nobel Prize-winning economist and advocate of the four-day week, disagrees. "If we use the knowledge of the newer economics, we can insure that there will be enough jobs to go around even if people should take it into their heads to work a 50 or a 60-hour week," he has written. "If, instead, people decide they want more leisure, the fact that this will slow down the rate of growth of the GNP is only a reflection of the inadequacy of the way we measure that magnitude."

Some firms have already gone beyond the four-day week. A handful of companies in New York state and other areas have put their employees on a 3-day, 12½-hour shift with four days off. Anyone for the Thank-God -It's -Wednesday club?

They promised they'd come back. Maybe it's just the controversy, but those grapes seem bigger and more delicious than ever.

NEW YORK (AP) — Once upon a time in a country called America a pretty little girl from England earned fame and wheelbarrow full of cash by exclaiming, "Sock it to me!"—and then letting people throw buckets of water in her face.

Millions of television fans thought the whole unlikely procedure was rib-cracking funny.

The girl was Judy Carne, and the video show—which she left last year—was "Laugh-In."

Well, time has marched on—and so has Judy. She has launched an exciting new phase of her career by becoming a star on the nation's supper club circuit. She is presently appearing at the Plaza Hotel's Persian Room.

When I called on Miss Carne recently she was clad in a long slinky green robe and resting on a bed large enough to provide a courtship space for two dromedaries and a brace of pigeons.

"It's my back that's bothering me." she said cheerfully. "It's just tension. When I get overtired, I have to take muscle relaxants and sit on a heating pad. Everybody has his weak spot—or breaks out in a rash or something."

Judy made it clear she was no disappointed fugitive from television.

"I'm grateful for the sock-itto-me tag, but I'd like to drop it pretty soon," she said. "I feel there's more to me than that."

There is indeed. Judy, the 31year-old daughter of a British greengrocer, has been a professional performer since she was 6. She is an adept and agile singer, dancer, comedienne and actress, experienced in the theater, screen and television.

But her moppet face, big brown eyes, staircase haircut and willow-thin figure still make her look like a runaway gamin from elfland. She also has an antic personality that charms audiences, and a vibrant energy both of body and spirit.

"Life to me is how I feel at the moment," she remarked. "Right now it's a trial, but tomorrow it'll be a joy.

"I guess my worst fault is probably overemotionalism. It gets me into many scrapes. But I guess it's my chief virtue, too. I have a natural sense of joy in life and in people. I like to know and all kinds of levels."

What is her goal?

"I'd love to do more straight acting," she said. "But most of all I simply want to win the respect of the industry. If you've got that, all the other things fall into place."

SAFETY AND ABUNDANCE

Remember when that new invention called DDT came on the market? As if by magic, it cleared our homes of the disease carrying housefly. Chemical pesticides came into wide use, not only in the home, but more importantly in agriculture.

As with nearly every innovation or invention, controversy arose. Fear was expressed that pesticides were poisoning o r food and posing a threat to the health of man and wildlife. Of late years, the air has gradually cleared of misunderstangind and prejudice. Chemical pesticides are now known for what they are, a revolutionary advancement in the science of agriculture.

Secretary of Agriculture Orval Freeman recognized this truth most forcefully in an Address to the Agriculture and National Resources Committees of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Of chemicals and pesticides, Mr. Freeman says, "The world can't feed a population that may reach 7 billion or more in another three decades without them. We couldn't feed our own people at the lowest cost in the wosld -- less than 18 per cent of disposable income this year -- without the help of them. This is primary."

As to the environmental problems created by the use of chemicals, he pointed out that the Department is making steady progress, and "Research in this field has been breatly expanded. We recognize the great danger from improper pesticide use. We're working constantly on better regulation, better instruction, and better information in using them."

The chemical pesticide industry itself has taken the lead in pesticide use education, even as it has ushered in a new agricultural era of unprecedented productivity.

The following paragraph is part of a letter received from a friend seeking a donation:

'It is a sad fact of life that it costs a community much more to deal with delinquency than, for example, it costs for a top grade universtiy education. It costs a community $20,000 a year to deal directly with the problem of one delinquent boy; it costs $40,000 to send a criminal to prison. In contrast, it costs Boys' Village just a little more than $6,000 per boy a year to rehabilitate 9 out of 10 youngsters who get there after taking a wrong turn somewhere.'

On the financial pages of most daily newspapers appears what are known as 'averages.' Dow - Jones compiles the daily averages of common stocks of thirty industrials, twenty railroads and twenty utilities. As these averages move up or down, so does the entire market of common stocks.

These averages have been compiled daily for several decades, and, by observing their movement, a theory has been evolved, known as the Dow theory. According to this theory, the averages forecast the future trend of the stock market and general business.

The philosophy back of the theory is interesting. Many years ago W.P. Hamilton said that the theory was rooted in human nature itself. Prosperity drives men to excess; repentance for the consequence of those excesses produces a corresponding depression.

The stock market reflects the thoughts and hopes and fears of the owners of billions of dollars of capital. As these owners express themselves with their buying and selling orders, so the market goes. Since the averages are a sample of the market, they cwn be said to be a barometer, perhaps the most impartial andthe most remorseless of all barometers, because, wrote Hamilton, 'the market represents everything everybody knows, hopes, believes, anticipates.'

It is not essential to depend upon other and more complicated theories as to what people are thinking at any moment. Their thoughts are eloquently expressed in dollars and cents in the averages of representative stocks.

A Federal tax change to permit a business to put more of its earnings back into operations — a so-called "plowback allowance" — is needed now to help small business, say most of the nation's independent business proprietors.

The National Federation of Independent Business reports strong support for the measure among businessmen because higher taxes, inflation and increased interest costs are making inroads on the working capital necessary to keep a business in good health.

A Federation 50-state poll shows that 71 percent of the independent merchants and professional people favor enactment of the "plowback allowance" which has been before Congress for several years. The Federation has found support for the proposal among two - thirds or more of the owners on several occasions.

The proposal, sponsoredin the last Congress by Representative James Corman of California, would permit a business to deduct up to 20 percent of profits, before taxes, for additional investments in plant, equipment, higher inventosy or larger accounts receivable — major facets of business growth which must now be financed with after - tax earnings.

Thus a business with $20,000 pre-tax profit showing $2,000 in added inventory value and $2,000 in new equipment would get the maximum plowback deduction of $4,000, which would bring a tax savings of a lesser amount on an adjusted taxable profit of $16,000.

A limit of $30,000 on the deduction, proposed in the legislation, means the measure would be of greatest benefit to smaller businesses, the Federation says.

In Missouri, 70 percent of the responding businessmen favor the "plowback allowance", 28 percent oppose it, and 2 percent are undecided.

Nationally, the poll showed 26 percent opposed and 3 percent without a firm opinion.

A certified public accountant who said the "plowback bill is long overdue," wrote the Federation that, "I have argued for 10 years that money left in a business for working capital needs should not be taxed."

Privately - held businesses do not enjoy the same advantage as corporations, which can set aside part of their profits, tax-free, for reinvestment. "A small business or professional man should be allowed to accumulate a net worth similar to the way a corporation can accumulate $100,000 in retained earnings."

"Small business must have some tax relief and/or incentive to reinvest profits in business without paying these unfair taxes on reported earned income," wrote a California employer of eight.

A supply company owner in Indiana said, "If our customers were allowed to plow back 20 percent of their earnings it would probably keep a number of them from going out of business, plus make good companies out of average concerns."

In a separate Federation survey of businesses, 80 percent of the owners said the passage of the plowback allowance would help them expand on inventory during the present inflation - tax squeeze.

"Either you, or you, left the seat up and I fell in."

FOR YOUR INFORMATION: The extremely low - rise trouser is not good for paunchy man; wide pants are unflattering on a short man; and extremely narrow trousers will exaggerate a thin man's legs ... H.L. Hunt Says

CUBA'S FLIGHT

Communist Fidel Castro is going into his thirteenth year as dictator of the miserable state of Cuba and his position, while not in danger apparently, is not enviable. Reports coming out of Cuba indicate that the production of sugar is running behind schedule, people are malingering, tobacco business is down and sabotage is increasing.

The island people have other problems, too, including increasing pressure from Russia to participate in decision-making. Intelligence reports indicate that the Soviets already have moved into many Cuban fields recently, including participation in the direction of the economy.

Moscow has huge investments in Cuba--some say over a million dollars a day--and the Kremlin wants to protect them. As Castro gets deeper in the mire of a sick economy, it is a good bet that the Russians will get tougher and widen their influence.

The Soviets now have two major bases in the Western hemisphere. Cuba, which fell to communist subversion and revolution, and Chile which at least made it formal through the ballot box. Some observers feel that Chile is Russia's best bet so far as the Kremlin seeks to spread the gospel of communism throughout the Americas and the world. Castro must be aware of this as he struggles to maintain a degree of freedom from Russian dictates.

But he will find, like other countries have, that the Kremlin is a demanding taskmaster. The Russians could care less about the Castro ego. And Chile, the new Western Hemisphere darling of the Soviets, will learn its lesson, probably after it is too late. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

EXCLUSIVE: Nixon Warns Hard Hat Friends To Stop Inflating Nation In One Year or else...

WASHINGTON: -- It was a soft sell in the crowded Cabinet Room -- but the velvet-covered words were tough enough. President Nixon spoke not in sorrow, but in anger and not as a supplicant -- as he conversed with labor and business leaders of the convulsive, $98 billion construction industry on which hangs much of this nation's bread and butter prosperity and ability to come in out of the economic cold.

Having made it clear that Monday noontime, Jan. 18, that he still was going steady with the hard hats, though their hearts belong to daddy, meaning George Meany, the President laid it on the line.

His tone was fraternal. In effect, he told the industry it has the "calendar year of 1971" to stop escalating the cost of homes, hospitals, roads and schools and apartments, defenses and skyscrapers or else...

You will read stories reporting the President said come back in 30 days. He did. And that six-man committee has been created to hold the buck on the line. It was. But don't expect instant deflation. The President doesn't.

The big news is he 's given both sides in the industry a year and he's given them his word that they either straighten out and fly low -- or he'll move. And whether Richard Nixon is your conception of a President or not -- do take it for granted that he means what he says. And this is how he said it:

"If we don't give evidence of responsibility in calendar '71 there will be a reaction in this country and the administration will be forced to act in ways it doesn't want to. Everybody is watching you.

"I am not going to tell you what to do. That's for you to decide. Step up to this thing and give me a plan in 30 days...I am not suggesting that if you don't do this (take some action-VR) we will do that. I express confidence in both sides...."

The President asserted he did not expect either side to do what was not in their "long-term interest" but that "people, and not just sophisticated people, see this as an industry that seems to be pushing along not only not in the public interest but also not in its own interest."

Up to the last moment before he had walked into the Cabinet Room a few minutes after 12 o'clock, he had been pressured by some of his staff -- with the outstanding exception of The Office of Management and Budget (TOMB) chief George Shultz -- to slap the building union leaders down hard, to kill some laws on high prevailing wages (David-Bacon) and to set up some sort or wage-price controls in the construction field. But he said positively no.

It is now axiomatic that he is fond of the hard hats. For a swift, single moment there was a John Kennedy touch in his attitude toward the construction contractors. It seeped out of his off-the-cuff conservation to the 40 men around the table, half of them labor leaders, half business men.

"There isn't anyone in the country who has given us (the administration -- VR) greater support than American labor," remarked the President.

The he disclosed where every President's anguish really has been these past decades -- on the foreign front.

"Frankly,"said he, "when some of American business was showing a lot of spinal weakness, American labor stood up."

But the President was aware of the topic on the table, and he added, obviously addressing the score or so of AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades general presidents and high officials:

"You have stuck your necks out before. And I want you to stick it (sic) out again for the President."

This followed his saying,"I appreciate the pressure from below."

He had begun the entire discussion with the observation that, "the construction industry's problems are so closely related to the hope of this country. I have said I would like to resist as much as possible calling in heads of labor and industry and blaming them for the cost of wages and the cost of prices." He talked of the growth of housing and hope of building 1.5 million to 2 million units in a good year.

But he wasn't clobbering -- not simplly because the hard hat leaders had walked shoulder to shoulder with him on the line of foreign policy but because he knew that the rank and file could cut off those necks if they were stuck way out.

The rank and file has become greedy, impatient, tough, and sometimes violent. It wants it all yesterday -- and if not, it wants enough to catch up on a year of yesterdays. Just look around.

Last year the average consctuction strike ran 44 days. In Rhode Island the glaziers have continued their strike begun last Sept. 1. They're blocking the completion of schools, hospitals, homes, commercial buildings -- and the jobs of others. They're asking for an increase of $180 (for a 40-hour week) in the new three-year contract.

Last year the average wage increase was 15.7 per cent a year. But just the other day five Jacksonville, Fla., construction craft unions rejected a 30 per cent annual increase -- about an additional $80 a week in an area where the work goes round the warm year.

And in Joliet, Ill., the iron workers demand is for $3 a hour more in one year -- or about $120 a week more. In Richmond, Va., plumbers turned down an increase of 20 per cent a year, or 60 per cent over three years.

And there are 1,368 contracts to go. They're firing up the nation. Actually, almost nothing can stop them if they refuse to work.

Well, the President gives them a year to cool it -- or else. We'll see.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Civil Aeronautics Chairman Secor D. Browne, who cast the swing vote last year for awarding valuable Pacific air routes to Pan American Airlines, has developed a cozy relationship with Pan Am executives. Here are the eyebrow-raising details:

Since his appointment to head the CAB, Browne has taken two winter vacations at the secluded Caribbean beach house of Pan Am vice president James Leet. The CAB chairman spent several days last January at Leet's three-bedroom, seaside winter home on Grenada in the Windward islands. Again this month, he went back for another siesta in the sun. Both men insist, however, that Browne paid the regular rental of a $35 a day.

Last May, Browne took his girl friend, Constance Haden, with him on an official trip to Tokyo. En route home, they stopped off at retired Pan Am vice president Sam Pryor's private paradise, complete with lush foilage and 37 sparkling waterfalls, on the Hawaiian island of Maui. It should be added that the government didn't pay Constance's expences and that Browne later married her.

Browne's right-handman at the CAB, Erastus Horning, resigned last April to join Pan Am. The airline put him in charge of its delicate Moscow operations.

We reached Browne at his Caribbean hideaway, where he takes calls for 30 minutes each afternoon at the nearest available telephone. He admitted that he was staying at Leet's beach house, also that he and Constance had visited Pryor's paradise on their way home from Tokyo where he represented the U.S. at an airport operator's convention.

"I rent from Leet at the same price as anyone else," said the CAB chairman. "I don't see anything wrong with it." He made the arrangements directly with Leet rather than go through a rental agency. "That way, he doesn't have to pay 10 per cent to a broker," explained Browne.

The use of a beach house, a visit to Maui, the hiring of an aide may not seem serious. But these episodes illustrate the chumminess that often exists between the government regulators and the people they regulate.

Browne voted last year to award an important network of air routes, serving the Micronesian islands in the Pacific, to Pan. Am. His vote gave Pan Am a crucial, three-to-two CAB majority. Browne's personal relationships raise the question whether he made this multi-million-dollar decision as a favor to friends.

GIs SHORT CHANGED

We continue to hear fromGIs around the world that their barracks, vehicles and equipment are falling into disrepair.

We received 86 handwritten complaints, for example, about the barracks at Ft. Meade, Md. "I wouldn't bring my pet dog in here." grumped one GI. The post's preventive medicine officer, after inspecting 13 barracks, agreed that they were "not suitable for human habitation."

Because of military cutbacks, apparently, some Army camps are short of replacement parts and maintenance supplies. Our investigation also indicates that it's the enlisted men invariable who are short-changed.

The top brass still seem to be able to get staff cars, stuffed chairs and luxury items without difficulty. Nor is there any apparent shortage of GI servants who are still available to wait on the brass hats.

GIs at Ft. Meade, in contrast, complained of long periods of no heat, no hot water, inoperable drinking fountains, clogged sinks and toilets, broken windows and doors, empty fire extinguishers and fire exits nailed shut.

Some wrote that their barracks were infested with rats and roaches. The condition, some feared, could breed disease. Others found it hard to sleep in the cold or to shave and shower without hot water.

"I am tired of going to bed at night with my field jacket and gloves on" to keep warm, wrote one soldier.

"When we did have heat," reported another, " the gases from the coal smoke would keep us awake coughing."

Capt. Robert J. Master, the preventive medicine officer who found the barracks unsuitable for human habitation, found temperatures in many buildings ranged from 45 to 55 degrees, far below the 68 to 72 degrees prescribed by Army regualations.

Even at those low temperatures, poisonous sulfur dioxide leaked from defective, antiquated coal-burning furnaces. The captain's report, dated January 12, also cited other violations of health standards and Army regulations.

Lt. Louis J. Font, a 1968 West Point graduate, complained last November about living conditions in the dilapidated, wooden, World War II-vintage barracks. When he got no action, he threatened to appeal to Congress and the press.

For his pains, he received an order on January 15 from the post commander, Col. A.W. Alexander, forbidding him to release information to the press without command approval.

A spokesman vigorously denied that deplorable conditions exist at Ft. Meade. His statement was characterized as "an obvious coverup" by Lt. Frank G. Solecki, executive officer of Company B, the unit most severly affected. But after inquiries from us and Rep. Parren Mitchell, Captain Master told us he conducted another inspection and found conditions improved.

Can Chiropractors Cure?

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago a fellow my husband works with got sick on the job. He refused to go to the company doctor and said he had his own specialists -- a chiropractor. Today the man was back at the mill feeling fine. He told my husband if more people went to chiropractors instead of to society doctors they'd be better off. He claims all ailments are tied up with the nerves of the spine and the chiropractor knows which nerves press to get the person well. He says it's much cheaper than fancy medical care, because the doctors are in cahoots with the drug manufacturers and all they are interested in is money.

We have been reading your column for years and we believe in that you say. What are your views on chiropractors? -- Pitssburgh People

Dear People: Chiropractors are wonderful -- if you have a tired back, and nothing else. But if you are sick I hope you will go to a physician who has been licensed by his state's Board of Medical Examiners.

Many illnesses are self-limiting. This means they disappear without treatment. A person who has been massaged by chiropractor and gets well often credits the chiropractor with having cured him. The truth is, he'd probably have been cured if he had fanned himself with goofus feathers. This is why most chiropractors do such a thriving business.

Massaging the spine will not cure a brain tumor, cancer, diabetes or gallstones. Nor will it cure a skin disease or a throat infection. The following testimony was given to a Congressional committee considering the question, "Should chiropractors be included in Medicare?"

"It is the universal opinion of health experts that chiropractors lack the proper training and background to diagnose and treat human disease. The education of chiropractors is sub-standard and unscientific and the theory on which treatment is based is medically unsound."

Dear Ann Landers: Please state you opinion on women in pantsuits. My husband announced when the pantsuit came out that if I ever wore such an outfit he would not be seen with me. He hates them.

Last week I tried on several pantsuits just to see how I'd look. (I loathe the midi, and the mini is definitely out.) I thought I looked great. How do you feel about women in pantsuits? ---Chomping At The Bit In Bellingham

Dear Bell: The pantsuit is for the tall, slim-hipped gal with a flat tummy and small caboose. The trousers must be well cut and the jacket must be strategically proportioned. In my opinion, the pantsuit can be smashing on the right figure. On the wrong figure it can be a disaster. (Your husband has probably seen some of the walking disasters.) Since he has stated such strong opposition against the pantsuit, that should settle the queston for you, Petunia.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 13. Mother says I'm too young to date. She also says I'm too young to drive, and too young to be out after curfew. The law says, I'm also too young to drink, too young to smoke and too young to work. What can a girl my age do? --Bored

Dear Bored: You can study hard and accomplish something in school. You can make worthwhile friends and develop interests that will broaden your scope and contribute something to others. You can help your mother around the house and take some of the burden off her shoulders. And you can be thankful what you have a mother who won't let you step all over her and do as you please.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Senf for her booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Nurses Association Meeting Here

The Eighth District Missouri Nurses' Association will meet Feb. 4, at 8 p.m. at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

The program will be presented by Sister Goretti McClore, Pharmacist at St. Francis Hospital, Cape Girardeau, Missouri, and James L. Hendrickson, Pharmacist at Southeast Missouri Hospital, also in Cape. Sister will speak on the "I.V. Additive System," a system of adding medications to intravenous fluids in the pharmacy rather than on a nursing unit. Hendrickson will discuss the "unit Dose System of Drug Distribution." Both systems are designed to free the nurses from non-nursing responsibilities and to provide a safer method of drug distribution to the patient in the hospital.

Southeast Missouri Hospital and St. Francis Hospital are the first hospitals in Southeast Missouri to initiate these systems.

Officers, committee chairmen, committee members, and board members of the Association for 1971-72 will be announced at this meeting.

Abortion at the Capitol

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Groups for and against efforts to amend Missouri's abortion law campaigned at the capitol this week even though no legislation to do the job has been introduced in either House or Senate.

A delegation of more than 400 representing anti-abortion interest groups presented petitions today to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. Joplin, St. Louis, Kansas City, Jefferson City and Springfield were represented either in the group or on the petitions.

Wednesday, the Missouri Commission on the Status of Women, which recommended in its 1969 report reform of the laws on abortion, had a special luncheon to voice its views. Five of the eight women in the House of Representatives pledged support to reforms or outright repeal.

One member of the anti-abortion delegation asked the governor for equal representation on the Commission. The governor explained the commission had no appropriations for its operation and was one over which he had no control.

The delegation gathered outside the office of Sen. John D. Schneider, D-Florissant, who told the group any changes in abortion laws would have to first overcome the fact that it involves "destruction of a life."

"It is a question of changing the attitude of society toward the dignity of life," he said.

Fashion

PARIS (AP) — Like termites, the minidress is gradually eating its way back into fashion.

Like many women, Emanuel Ungaro, who showed this morning, wasn't quite at ease with the long length. So he hiked up a lot of his hemlines to a generous six inches above the knee and added shorts.

Prints, prints and more prints, designed as always by Sonia Knapp, color the Ungaro mood for summer. Daisies, bubbles, stripes and polka dots—and combinations thereof—come in red, black and white, navy and white, not to mention lavender, turquoise, mustard and green.

These are mixed carefully to give an at random feeling. Different ones go on double-breasted blazers and coats, skirts, shorts and scarfs all piled on top of each other. On the legs are black and orange opaque stockings, patterned of course.

And the more leg that sticks out of his soft-printed silk dresses, the better. Whether very short, at the knee or ending at mid-calf for evening, the silhouette grazes the hip and changes to a flurry of pleats at the dropped waist. The longer the dress, the lower the waist.

Along with many designers Guy Laroche, who also showed this morning, has settled on shorts plus a semireturn to the '40s.

There are the popular all-inone shorts and top, cuffed bermudas under a long belted jacket and skirts slit to expose the shorts below.

Hubert de Givenchy descended from his Olympian heights for his spring collection and revelled in a riot of color, sheer paisley and patchwork floral prints giving daring—though never offbeat—treatments.

Drama stepped forth with the first beachwear and playsuits favoring terry cloth. Color contrasts were favored, halving the model back and front or in pro-file.

Givench is all for shorts, revealing them beneath slashed skirts or more often under seethrough paisley, or floral printed or plain organz a skirts.

Givenchy's fabric story stresses denim, rustic linen, cotton prints and terry. For coats he favors printed stretch, plain wool and two-tone woven checks.

A Paris confectioner, Nicolas Appert, discovered how to preserve foods in 1809, using glass bottles immersed in boiling water, to win a government prize of 12,000 francs.

DARTMOUTH, Canada (AP) — Dartmouth's Heritage Museum is attempting to uncover a part of the city's lost heritage — the MicMac Indians. Museum director G.S. Gosley says artefacts and materials related to the MicMac tribes which formed an important part of Dartmouth's heritage are scarce. He said, "We recently revised our MicMac display after acquiring several arrow heads and articles of clothing, but it is still very small. We are looking for anything connected with the nomadic tribes which made their homes all over the province."

The Shorts Have It!

PARIS (AP) — Dior relegated the short shorts craze to its boutique today and settled for knee-length bermudas in its haute couture collection for spring. Skirt lengths were held at about two inches below the knee for daytime and at the ankle for evening.

Designer Marc Bohan presented a line of dresses and suits with squared and sometimes padded shoulders. The approach to spring was with pastels and light, airy fabrics.

Tailored suits featured a longer jacket, often three-quarters in length and softly belted in self-fabric tie.

Dior's dress silhouette is a triple one. Shirtwaist dresses are favored, with box-pleated shirts. There is also the contour shift, as well as many dresses with fuller skirts, belt-marked waistlines and full soft sleeves.

In keeping with the soft feminine silhouette, Dior shows elbow-length cape sleeves, often slashed to lend lightness. This goes through every hour of the day and even appears on some coats.

Gary Owens

POINT LOOKOUT--As spring training begins in the baseball parks of the professionals no rookie player will be experiencing higher hopes than Gary Owens, nationally rated player from The School of the Ozarks, as he starts his senior year of play. Owens, who recently received the NAIA Big Stick award for his .500 batting average for 1970, starts a 22 game schedule for the S of O Bobcats in March hopeful of attracting further attention from scouts for the big leagues.

The 6-foot-1, 175 pound utility man will complete his college work at the end of the summer session and is hopeful that he can realize his ambition of becoming a professional baseball player. His father, Roy Owens, Route 4, Sikeston, Mo., had played semi-pro ball and had tutored him so well that when he graduated from Scott County Central high school he received the offer of a contract with Los Angeles. He turned the bid down in order to go to college in Florida. He transferred to S of O two years ago where his playing has been observed several times by a Detroit scout.

Although he also plays basketball, Gary's interest lies largely in baseball. He is a physical education major at The School where he anxiously awaits the opening of the 1971 collegiate season. He hopes he can turn in a new record that will bring offers of contracts from the professionals.

Gary participated in Connie Mack baseball at Sikeston, where he was a member of a pair of national finalest in the World Series.

While at SCCHS he was a member of the school's first state tournament entry and was named to a number of prep cage star teams.

Pepper Rodgers Names Assistants

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pepper Rodgers, UCLA's new football coach, added three assistants to his staff Tuesday, giving him a total of nine.

A university spokesman said the three are Ken Blair, 29, assistant football coach at the University of Colorado for five years; Lynn Styles, 29, assistant at Utah and Iowa for eight years, and Ron May 31, who assisted Rodgers at Kansas last year.

Reserve Sparks Panther Drive

LILBOURN---Melvin Nesbitt came off the bench in the second half and sparked top seeded Lilbourn into the championship game of the New Madrid county tournament Wednesday night, scoring 12 points, pulling nine rebounds and igniting a devastating fast break that eliminated Parma, 80-65.

Coach Larry Warren's Panthers cagers literally burned the nets off in the second half, pouring in 52 points to run its season record to 14-3. Parma was left with a 16-5 season slate.

Lilbourn's sharp shooting moved them into a 19 point advantage during the final minute of the contest as their fast break and out-side accuracy ended any hopes that the Pirates had of unseeding the host.

Big 6-foot-3 Charles Blair pumped in 20 points, 12 coming in a big 28 point fourth quarter, to lead the LHS offense that included 19 by Jerome Wilderness and 10 by David Williams along with Nesbitt's 12 and scoring by three other players.

Parma's David Williamson led all scorers for the game, netting 23 points while David Wright added 19 and Joe White 13.

Coach Warren takes his cagers into Friday's title bout against the winner of Thursday night's New Madrid -- Matthews clash in hopes of becoming the first person to have played on a New Madrid county title team and return to lead another quintet to the title.

Warren was on the Parma team that claimed the county honors the last time the tournament was held at Lilbourn.

New Madrid upset second seeded Matthews in Wednesday's opening action, 47-44.

Sylvester Sims pumped in 17 points and Bill St. Mary added 12 for the Indians. Audie Davis netted 19 for the MHS's leadership and high game honors.

Action resumes tonight with semi-final bouts set in both A and B divisions. Lilbourn's top seeded Panthers face Gideon in the B opener at 6:30 p.m. while New Madrid goes against Matthews in the 8 p.m. varsity contest.

Team Play Singled Out As Mizzou's Success

KANSAS CITY (AP)--What makes Missouri's basketball Tigers click?

Team play, says Coach Norm Stewart, whose squad leads the Big Eight Conference with a 3-0 mark and boasts an 11-4 over-all record.

Noting that four of the five starters have scoring averages in double figures, Stewart said, "This group has worked hard and they're deserving of all the success they have had so far."

Steward, who is in his fourth year at MU, said "It's been a team proposition all the way."

Henry Smith, the only returning regular from last year's 14-11 squad, spearheads the Tigers. He has scored 329 points in 15 games for a 21.9 average;

Stewart appears to have settled on a front line of Smith and John Brown, both 6-foot-7, and Bob Allen, 6-foot-8.

Greg Flaker and Mike Griffin hold down the guard spots. Flaker, who sparked Mizzou to an 80-72 victory over Kansas State, is hitting on 56.4 per cent of his shots.

And Griffin, the fastest man on the team, "can stir things up," Stewart said.

"When we beat K-State here," said Stewart, "Smith -- leading scorer-was the one who passed off for two layups that helped us break away."

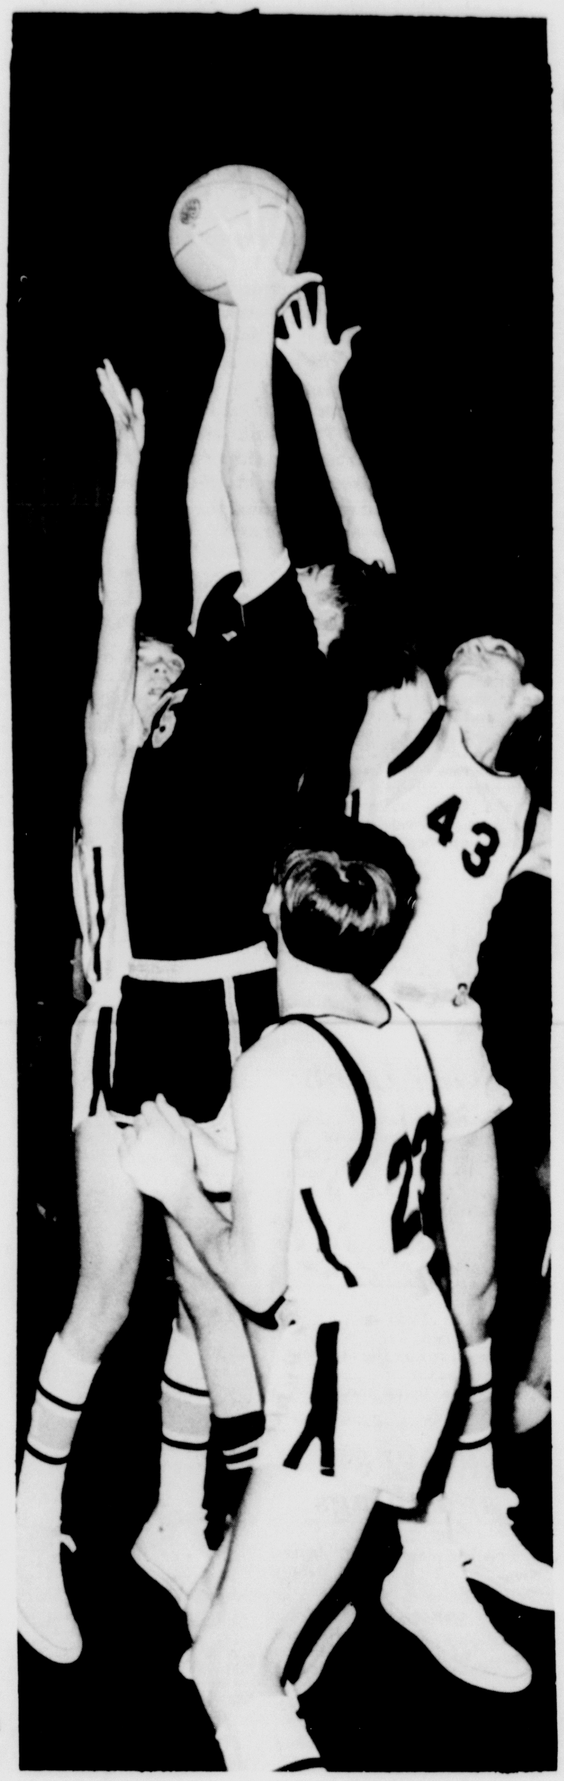

Brown, who has appeared in only seven games, has a 13.6 point a game average while Allen is at 13.3 and Flaker at 10.1.

The 3-0 Big Eight mark is the best start any Missouri basketball team has posted since the 1954-55 season. The last time a Tiger squad won its first four league games was in 1946-47.

MU will try to equal and better that when the Tigers take on Oklahoma, 2-2, in a televised game Saturday afternoon at Norman, and clash with Oklahoma State Monday night.

The Sooners defeated Missouri 70-63 in a second-round Big Eight tournament game at Kansas City in December.

BASKETBALL RULES
Simplified and Illustrated

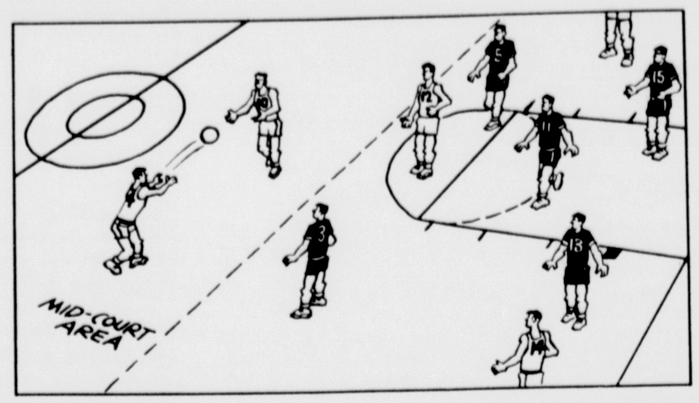

LACK OF ACTION IN MID-COURT

The mid-court area extends from the division line to an imaginary line in its front court which is 28 feet from the end line.

There is lack of sufficient action any time the ball remains in the front court for ten seconds without sufficient opposition.

When the offense has two or more players in the mid-court, at least two defensive players must be in this area and one must attempt to gain control or there is not sufficient action.

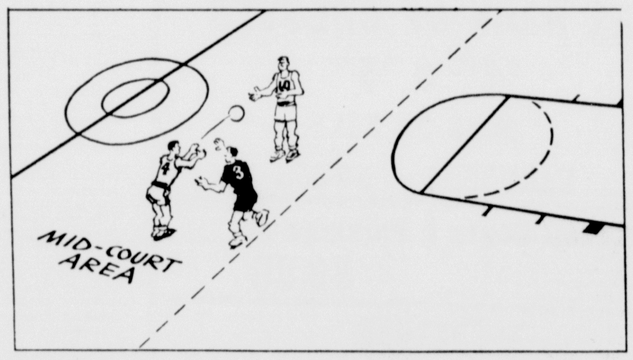

When there is lack of action for ten seconds the responsible team is warned once for a period. After being warned if a team fails to provide action in five seconds a technical foul is called.

The defensive team is standing in a zone defense and the offensive guards playing catch in the mid-court area. Now, the question is, who is responsible for lack of sufficient action? After 10 seconds an official recognizes that there is lack of sufficient action. He then warns the team responsible to initiate action, which is the team that is behind in the score; and if the score should be tied, it is the responsibility of the defense to initiate the action. The team responsibile is warned to initiate action and if the team doesn't initiate action within 5 seconds, it is a technical foul.

When the score is tied or the defense is behind, the responsibility is on the defense to provide action. After "A" keeps the ball in mid-court for ten (10) seconds the referee points in the direction the defense must move to provide action and calls out in a clear, clarion voice, "Play ball."

There are two offensive men in the mid-court area and only one defensive man goes out to pursue the ball. When the defense is responsible for action and the offense has two men in mid-court with the ball, the defense must have at least two men in this area. They are never required to have more than two in the mid-court area.

Bell City JV, Dexter To Stoddard's Finals

By GEORGE SMITH

ESSEX—Wednesday night was a rough night for the favorites as the junior varsity team from Woodland found the Bell City team too hot to handle and were upset in the opening game 40 to 37. Although the first game was exciting in its own right, the varsity match between number one seeded Dexter and the fourth seeded Bernie Mules was a thrilling game in which both teams gave all they had in an effort to bring home the victory. The Bearcats had to take the scrappy Mules into overtime and even then the game was still up for grabs until the closing seconds. Dexter took the game 47 to 45 in one overtime.

WOODLAND FALLS

The cinderella team of the junior varsity Stoddard County tournament has got to be the Bell City Cubs. Upsetting the number one team in the tournament in the first game the JV unit from Bell City proved to their fans Wednesday night that there will be something to cheer about come Saturday night and the finals of this tournament. Using a third quarter rush led by David Swindell the Bell City Cubs pulled another upset by downing the Woodland Cardinals 40 to 37 in a fast moving ballgame. Leading the scoring attack for the Cubs were David Swindell with 21 and Lee Rendleman who hammered in 13 points. The only Woodland Cardinal to place in double figures was Steve Filer who flipped in 19.

DEXTER POSTS OVERTIME VICTORY

In a game that was close and well fough from the opening tip to the last shot in overtme play, the Bearcats of Dexter prevailed over the scrappy and hustling Bernie Mules. Both teams played their hearts out trying to record the victory and the right to play Saturday night against the winner of the Thursday night ballgame between Advance and Richland. A third quarter rush by the Mules propelled them into the lead, but alas the Dexter offense kept whittling away at the lead and at the end of regulation play the score was tied 41 to 41. Moving into the overtime, Bernie took the tip but no one scored until Randy Northington of Dexter fired in a five foot jump shot with 1:39 remaining in overtime play to put Dexter in the lead. Terry Demaree and Franic Guelthe pumped in 2 points apiece to round out the Bearcat scoring in the overtime play. The only points collected in the extra play by the Bernie quintet were by Sides and Williams who fipped in 2 points each.

Leading the scoring for the Dexter Bearcats were Terry Demaree with 16 and teammate Danny Summers who flipped in 11. The Bernie Mules placed three men in the double figure column, those were Niel Beckman, who led the way with 13, Leslie Brown and Mike Campbell added 11 and 10 points respectively.

Baseball Executives Down On Basketball

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Organized, competitive basketball should be a no-no for major league baseball players, says Bob Howsam and Sparky Anderson.

The general manager and manager of the National League pennant-winning Cincinnati Reds have the scar — a serious injury to star center fielder Bob Tolan — to prove it.

Against the club's wishes, Tolan, Johnny Bench, Pete Rose, Jimmy Stewart, Lee May and Jim Maloney agreed to play a 19-game basketball barnstorming tour this winter.

Tolan tore an Achilles tendon during a basketball game and will be sidelined until June, forcing Howsam to think of contract rule amendments and Anderson to shuffle his outfield talent.

"I think clubs should have the say if players are to play basketball in their contracts. We cannot do that now because of the last negotiations with the players," Howsam said.

"That's one of Marvin Miller's beauts. I'm sure he won't replace Tolan for us," Anderson said of the players' legal counsel who engineered the move that basketball was permitted in current contracts.

Anderson, who led the Reds into the World Series in his first year at the helm, said he would use Hal McRae in left, Pete Rose in center and Bernie Carbo in right if the National League season began today.

Except for two charity contests, the Reds players cancelled the rest of their basketball exhibitions when Tolan was hurt. May, the slugging first baseman, said he thinks basketball is a good idea, however.

"If it's permissible," May said, "I'd play again next year. It keeps you in shape. It's controlled. We had our own referees and it's enjoyable.

"Tolan could have got hurt playing catch with his kids. It's just one of those things," he said.

K.C. Royals Sign Draftees

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The first two choices in the regular phase of the free agent draft have signed with the Kansas City Royals.

Lou Gorman, director of minor league operations for the American League baseball club, announced today that John Wathan, the first pick, and Mike Bauer, the Royals' second choice, have signed contracts.

Wathan, 21, a 6-foot-2, 200 -pound catcher from the University of San Diego, was assigned to San Jose of the Class A California League.

Plunkett, Manning 1-2 In Pro Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett, the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, was selected by the Boston Patriots today as the No. 1 pick in the National Football League's college draft.

The Patriots landed Plunkett, holder of the all-time major college records for passing and total offense yardage, after spurning numerous offers to swap the top choice in a package deal for established players.

Plunkett reportedly will seek a $250,000 contract. The Patriots, who drafted first because their 1970 won-lost record was the worst in the league, have another high-salaried quarterback in Joe Kapp.

The New Orleans Saints, picking second, selected quarterback Archie Manning of Mississippi, as expected.

The Houston Oilers picked a third quarterback, Santa Clara's Dan Pastroini.

The first three picks were made within 10 minutes after the 17-round draft session kicked off at 10 a.m. EST at a midtown hotel. Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced the successive quarterback selections.

The Buffalo Bills, picking fourth, broke the quarterback string with the selection of swift J. D. Hill, a wide receiver from Arizona State.

As the New York Jets prepared to make their selection, Rozelle interrupted the proceedings to announce a blockbuster trade in which the Los Angeles Rams dealt six players, including their starting linebacking trio of last season to the Washington Redskins.

Washington, whose coach, George Allen, piloted the Rams last season, gave up linebacker Marlin McKeever, its No. 1 and 3 picks in this year's draft and five more 1972 draft choices.

Going to the Redskins are veteran linebackers Myron Pottios, Jack Pardee and Maxie baughan, defensive tackle Diron Talbert, a 1970 starter, guard John Wilbur and running back Jeff Jordan.

In addition to McKeever and the two high draft choices this year, the Rams will have Washington's third through seventh picks in next year's draft.

Super Soph at Mizzou

COLUMBIA—Not many rookies ever get the opportunity or challenge of playing their first collegiate basketball game against the national defending champions.

That was John Brown's indoctrination -- nine games into Mizzou's 1970-71 schedule. The blond 6-7 Tiger scored 14 points against UCLA at Los Angeles -- shrugging off the effects of a bone fracture in his foot and six weeks of virtual inactivity.

What was it like to break in against the Bruins?

"Not too bad. After I hit that first shot, nothing bothered me very much."

There was speculation that Brown's ailing foot might postpone his competition for one year if Coach Norm Stewart decided to red-shirt him. How did the Dixon, Mo., youth react to the possibility?

"The more I watched the team play, the more I wanted to be in there. I couldn't stay away from it."

At Kansas City, Missouri hit its flattest plateau of the year in the Big Eight tournament -- and Stewart surmised then that his club had not yet adjusted to Brown's presence in the lineup.

"I'm sure this was true," Brown evaluates. "We had learned so much new stuff on offense. I had watched it in practice, but had not executed it in scrimmage situations.

"Now I feel like I'm a part of the team again, and my only problem is still conditioning. I have a tendency to get tired, and hang my head -- but I'll get that corrected before too long."

Now a regular, Brown is averaging 13.3 points a game. Many observers feel that the well-knit rookie has been a steadying influence in Mizzou's surprising 11-4 climb -- and the spotless 3-0 conference mark they will carry into their big road series against Oklahoma and Oklahoma State this weekend.

A muscular in-fighter, Big John hit his seasonal high of 23 points and 11 rebounds in an 84-78 win over Oklahoma here -- and was promptly labeled by Sooner Coach John MacLeod as "one of the most promising young stars in the Big Eight".

Brown knows where he had to polish his game.

"They've been giving me the outside shot -- and I have been working on it. I've got to make 'em guard me, so I can get to the bucket."

What about this third game with Oklahoma -- Mizzou's next conference foe?

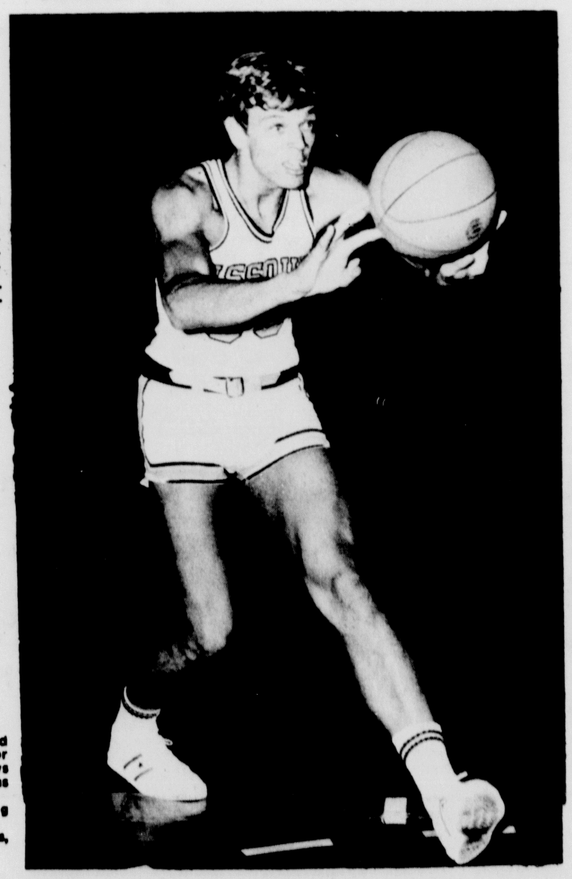

"After Kansas, Oklahoma is probably my next pick as the conference's toughest team.. They're better than many people give them credit for. That Scott Martin is one of the better guards around."

What does Missouri have to do to meet the stiff competition that lies ahead?

"We've got to learn to handle the ball well in the late stages of the game. We manage to play well for about three quarters, but it's a question of keeping our momentum and stamina.

"In the Big Eight, most games always narrow down to the last few minutes. The team that can take care of itself then is going to win it."

Returning to practice after the examination break, Missouri meets the touring Athletes in Action basketball team, composed of former collegians, here Tuesday night at 7:35 p.m.

BIG 6-foot-7 John Brown, one of the Big 8 conferences outstanding sophomore's from the University of Missouri played high school basketball for the 1969 state Class M champion Dixon Bulldogs. He was an instrumental factor that year in the victory over Oran in the controversial title game.

Gas Tax Increase Would Aid Counties

JEFFERSON CITY-A two-cent increase in the state gasoline tax would increase state funds for county road construction and maintenance by 40 per cent, according to figures released today by the Missouri State Highway Commission.

Thomas A. David, Director of Highways, pointed out that any gas tax increase would be shared among the state, counties and cities as under the present formula. That formula, established by constitutional amendment in 1962, gives counties five per cent of the net revenue from the state's motor vehicle fuel tax. The money is channeled through the County Aid Road Trust Fund. Under the program, counties select and carry out their own projects with approval by the State Highway Department.

The two-cent-a-gallon tax increase is part of the State Highway Commission's proposed 12-year, $1.4 billion highway program. Other key features include a bond issue of about $450 million, revisions in car and truck registration fees and increases in operator's license fees and fees for new and duplicate titles.

Major features in the Commission's proposed highway program are:

About 1,850 miles of four lane-divided highways, about 350 miles of ultimate four-lane highways, grade separations at all railroad crossings where four-lane construction is planned, twelve major river and lake crossings, and improvement of the many overburdened facilities in the metropolitan St. Louis and Kansas City areas.

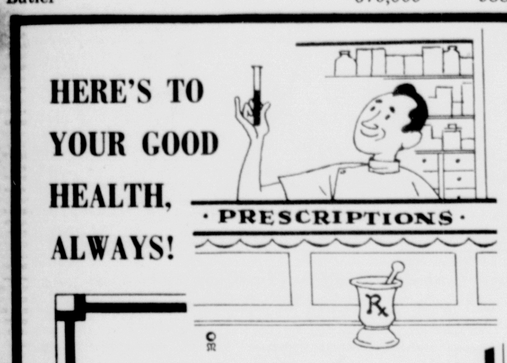

If the increase is approved, David said, counties would receive an estimated $113,827,000 during the next ten-year period, compared to $81,305,000 under the present five-cent tax.

David emphasized that the individual county figures were based on the 1960 census and might vary accordingly under the 1970 census.

The estimate ten-year Cart fund receipts for the present five-cent tax and the proposed seven-cent tax are:

Arguments for 18-Year-Old Vote Heard

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Arguments favoring the right of 18-year-old Missourians to vote were heard Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. No action was taken.

Principal advocate of the right was Jack Matthews, former dean of students at the University of Missouri at Columbia. Matthews told the committee he thought the citizens of this state are ready to pass a Constitutional Amendment to lower the voting age to 18.

Lincoln University President Dr. Walter C. Daniel also praised the young saying "we do not need to fear our young."

"I know what it is to be voiceless," Daniel, a Negro, told the committee.

The committee met to consider the proposed Constitutional Amendment introduced by Sen. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, which followed a U.S. Supreme Court decision which upheld a federal law extending the vote to 18-year-olds in Presidential and Congressional elections.

Two years ago the Senate passed a proposed amendment which would have given 18-yearolds all adult rights — right to enter into contracts, marry, sue and be sued, buy liquor and so on. The proposal got nowhere in the House.

Howard said he preferred that only the right to vote be considered this time.

Grains Panel Favors 20 Per Cent Set-Aside

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grains advisory committee has told the Agriculture Department it favors keeping at 20 per cent the "set-aside" land idled under the 1971 feed program.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clarence D. Palmby said although there was no vote on the issue, he believed most of the 27-member panel favored keeping the 20 per cent requirement.

Palmby's comments were made to newsmen after a daylong closed meeting of the advisory group Tuesday.

The department announced last month a tentative plan for operating the government's 1971 feed grains program for corn and sorghum. It called for farmers to idle 20 per cent of their feed land in exchange for price support and other benefits.

Under the new farm law, a farmer can plant as much of a crop as he chooses once he sets aside from production a portion of his crop land.

Palmby said, however, final decisions on 1971 program details, including the feed grains set-aside, are not expected to be announced before Feb. 1.

A special planting report issued Monday indicated farmers will plant about six per cent more corn this year despite the possibility of leaf blight. The disease helped reduce corn production last year almost 15 per cent from early expectations.

Palmby said administration farm policy makers were generally pleased by the planting report although many of its features were still being studied.

The department hopes for about 4.8 billion bushels of corn this year to help meet livestock feeding and other requirements.

Palmby said advisory committee members indicated they thought farmers expressed their planting intentions on the basis of a 20 per cent set-aside tentatively announced last month.

Hyden Mine Owners Face Possible Penalties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities may seek civil and criminal penalties for the owners of a Kentucky coal mine where an explosion killed 38 men last month, it has been learned.

But strong federal action against mine operators is so rare the Bureau of Mines has been required to clear its moves not only with acting Secretary of the Interior Fred J. Russell, but with the White House as well, administration sources told the Associated Press.

Mines Bureau Director Elbert F. Osborn met with Russell late Tuesday, and the sources said Interior Department representatives would discuss the matter today with the Office of Management and Budget, a key White House satellite.

The explosion occurred Dec. 30 at Hyden, Ky., in twin mines opened last March by brothers Charles and Stanley Finley.

During nine months of operation, the mines were cited by federal inspectors for dozens of health and safety violations.

A Bureau of Mines investigation after the blast drew testimony indicating that primer cord—barred from the mines by law—may have been used inside the Finley mines, igniting coal dust which spread the explosion through the tunnels.

The bureau has completed its inquiry, but officials were still debating their next step late Tuesday.

Mine safety violations could bring large fines but it was learned officials were contemplating also some sort of criminal charges, possibly based on conflicting testimony given at the bureau's hearings.

The administration plans to announce its findings on the Hyden disaster Friday.

The Hyden disaster, ironically, has put Osborn in the same uncomfortable position once occupied by his predecessor, John F. O'Leary.

Four weeks after O'Leary's appointment in 1968, a mine explosion at Mannington, W. Va., killed 78 men.

O'Leary's response to that tragedy was to back strong mine safety legislation. Early last year, President Nixon fired him with one day's notice.

Osborn, formerly vice president for research at Pennsylvania University, took office last Oct. 23 just two months before the Hyden disaster.

$93 Million Added to Plant Costs

NEW MADRID--Union featherbedding, jurisdictional disputes and inflation have added $93 million to the cost of building New Madrid's new generating plant and adjoining Noranda Aluminum Co. facilities, officials said Wednesday.

The soaring costs are a 51 per cent increase over the original estimate of $183.6 million.

New Madrid citizens will vote probably next month on issuing an additional $60 million in revenue bonds to finish the huge generating plant.

NORANDA WILL pick up the padded tab on its facilities, estimated to be in the neighborhood of $17 million.

John Strinich, general manager of Noranda, said featherbedding and jurisdictional disputes were party responsible for the increased costs.

JAMES MILLER, resident manager for Kaiser Engineers Inc. refused to comment.

Strinich said Kaiser investigated reports of featherbedding, drinking and gambling earlier, but he declined to reveal the results.

Hal Hunter Jr., New Madrid County prosecuting attorney, said he, the highway patrol and the sheriff's office are conducting a joint investigation.

He said similar reports had been investigated but no evidence of wrongdoing was found.

Hunter, who was also New Madrid city attorney and was among those instrumental in getting the Noranda company to build in the area, said the added costs in construction will affect electrical rates for future companies that may locate in the 4,100-acre industrial park.

The Park, about eight miles southeast of New Madrid, was developed with $3 million in federal aid.

The labor problems, he said, "came as quite a shock and surprise to all of us."

While citing additional labor costs as a factor, Hunter also blamed inflation for part of the increase in costs.

Route Z Location Approval

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri State Highway Commission approved the final location and preliminary design details for route 1, Stoddard county.

Commission action followed a public hearing held on the improvement which extends from existing route Z east 2.3 miles to route W.

After full consideration of the favorable and adverse economic, social, and environmental effects of the recommended design, the Commission found and determined that the recommended location and design would best serve the interests of the public.

W.H. Shaw, district engineer, indicated final design would be completed. The project will be placed under contract subsequent to receiving the right-of-way which is to be furnished to the State Highway Commission without cost.

Shaw stated the proposed improvement will include bridges over Ditch 40, ditch 37, and Main Ditch 1 and provide through route between the communities of Bernie and Kewanee.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The accumulative enrollment, that is all who have enrolled in our schools during the year even though some may have transferred or dropped out since, has reached a total figure of 5,302 for the fourth month of school ending on January 4, 1971. On that same date 4,949 were actually enrolled and in school. The average daily attendance for the month was 4,461.40. During that month, 69 new students enrolled and 80 were dropped from the attendance rolls.

One likely reason for the excess of dropped students over the newly enrolled was the ?ssening of the Kaiser Construction Company activity in the New Madrid area. A considerable number of Kaiser employees live or have lived in Sikeston and the completion or near completion of the Noranda activity has necessitated that some of these families move elsewhere for employment, resulting in withdrawal of their children from school.

The annual audit of the school system's financial affairs for the 1969-70 school year was recently completed and accepted by the Board of Education. It was an unqualified audit, completed by the certified public accounting firm of Day, Spitzmiller, & Sisk. Copies of the audit are available for inspection by interested citizens, at the Board of Education Office.

While an audit is required by state law for each two-year period, our Board of Education has it done annually. A full report of income and expenditures in the school budget, which is required to be made to the Missouri State Department of Education, is printed in the Sikeston Daily Standard, following its completion in late July or August of each school year.

While we have not yet completed our evaluation of the faculty In-Service Training Program Workshop conducted at the schools last Friday, preliminary indications are that the activities were very successful.

Over 90% of the parents of elementary school youngsters, grades K-5, reported to the various schools for conferences with their children's teachers. Teachers and principals were enthusiastic in their assessment of these conferences and almost all of the parents seemed to appreciate the opportunity to discuss their child's progress, accomplishments and/or problems, with the teacher. About 1,600 parents reported for the conferences. Some parents who were unable to make the schedule will be given the opportunity to do so, either before or after school, at some later date. Those who find it impossible to make such an arrangement will receive a brief written report, although it can not be nearly as informative as would the parent-teacher conference.

It is probable that another such parent-teacher conference day will be planned for next year.

Middle School faculty members spent the day in observing teacher activity or educational programs in other schools. A report of the result of these visits will be compiled in order to develop ways by which we might utilize some of the ideas or techniques observed, as a possible means of improving our programs.

Senior High School faculty spent the day working on course outlines to improve instructional procedures and develop curriculum materials and also as a part of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools evaluation of our high school, which is shortly to get under way.

The Missouri Advisory Council for Vocational Education visited in our schools Tuesday and Wednesday to observe the vocational programs which the Board of Education maintains for our students and those of neighboring schools. The committee, composed of about 10 lay members, was accompanied by Deputy Commissioner of Education B. W. Robinson of the Missouri State Department of Education and several of the other vocational education department personnel.

This committee assists the Commissioner by advising on matters relating to vocational education in Missouri.

The vocational program, which the Board of Education provides here, is one of the most comprehensive in the state and enrolls the highest percentage of the student body in vocational classes, of any Area School in Missouri.

The post high school program of vocational education has a total enrollment of 72. Of these, 30 are armed services veterans, enrolled under the GI bill. Four vocational rehabilitation students are enrolled and are receiving training provided for handicapped persons.

No local tax funds are used in the post high school program, as its costs are met through tuition payments made by students and by federal funds.

Ex-POW Says Tortures Left Out of Hanoi Films

NEW YORK (AP) — A former American prisoner of war in North Vietnam says Hanoi-released films depicting life in POW camps bear no relation to the torture treatment he had to undergo.

Maj. James Low, who was shot down over North Vietnam in December 1967 and released the following August, commented Tuesday in a television interview on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkhite.

He described a torture in which his captors used a metal bar about 18 inches long and one inch in diameter.

"They put this in my mouth and a guy ... put his knee in my back and pulled this thing back against ... as far back as he could and the pain is excruciating. I never felt a pain worse than that," he said.

"They kept asking me questions and then all of a sudden they got up and pushed me down and took the bar out. They left for maybe another hour or so ... two hours. And then they came back again and the same treatment started again.

"Asking me what target, what target ... they had a big map out on the table and they went through the handcuff and twine routine and this time they really pulled this bar back inside. Blood gushed out from my ear ... ruptures something in there.

"This treatment went on and off for about well, six or seven days. Of course, whenever they were torturing me with this bar and what have you, I screamed because it really was excruciating. It seemed like when they'd leave me they'd go somewhere else and I could hear a person next door screaming, too. The same treatment, I presume it was my partner but I don't know for sure," he said.

Low, now operations officer at McCoy Air Force Base, Fla., was asked if there was any similarity between his treatment at the hands of the North Vietnamese and that shown in Christmas films of American POWs released by Hanoi.

"None at all," he said. "We had no group activity whatsoever. It was a camp regulation that you would not communicate with anyone else and if you did you were punished. And their punishment is not like ours. It's closer to torture when they punish you."

Investigation Up To County Officials

NEW MADRID — Any illegal activities being conducted by union members at construction sites in New Madrid's St. Jude Industrail park should be under jurisdiction of New Madrid county officials, a spokesman in the office of State Attorney General John C. Danforth said.

A member of Local 282 of the Laborers Union disclosed last week that gambling, drinking, stealing, operation of private businesses and featherbedding have been conducted at the construction sites of Noranda Aluminum Inc., and the stream generating plant, both on the industrial tract.

Noranda Aluminum officials say they expect a huge overrun in the cost of its aluminum reduction plant. Kaiser Engineers, primary contractors for both Noranda and the City of New Madrid's steam plant will far exceed original estimates.

New Madrid city officials have learned that an additional $60 million in revenue bonds will have to be issued to complete construction of the 600,000 magawatt steam plant. It is scheduled for completion in April, 1972.

The spokesman in Danforth's office said investigation of any illegal activities at the construction site is the responsibility of New Madrid County Prosecuting Attorney Hal E. Hunter Jr., and County Sheriff W. L. ("Cowboy") Ramsey Jr.

"I can see no way this would come under our jurisdiction," the spokesman said.

Troop E of the State Highway Patrol has been investigating reports of tools and other equipment being stolen from the construction sites. Capt. Wayne C. Brooks, troop commander, said it has turned up nothing.

He pointed out that the investigation conducted by his men has dealth only with thefts and did not include the allegations made by the eight-year member of local 282 who told of illegal activities of the union.

Sheriff Ramsey's office and the patrol are looking into illegal acts at the construction sites disclosed by the union member who was employed at the Noranda site nine months.

The informant said he also worked closely with members of Operating Engineers Local 513 of St. Louis. He said the operators union also practiced featherbedding at the industrial park.

Noranda Aluminum's reduction plant was scheduled to go into operation Dec. 15. It has not begun operation.

School Aid Hike In Plans for Revenue Sharing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says federal school aid would increase from $2.9 billion to $5.1 billion under the general revenue sharing plan proposed by the President.

Officials say some $2 billion of the increase would be the portion of the proposed $5 billion general revenue-sharing pool which states and local governments would use mainly for public school aid. The remaining $200 million would be new money.

As outlined by administration education officials Tuesday, the states would share the $5.1 billion on the basis of population alone. The biggest states, therefore, would get the largest share.

The money would be funneled through five broad categories of elementary and secondary education spending rather than the present 100 sometimes overlapping, special purpose aid programs. The five categories would be compensatory, impact aid to districts with large numbers of federal employes, vocational, handicapped, and equipment and facilities.

Patterson Urges Spending Lid

JEFFERSON CITY — (AP), — Sen. J.F. Patterson (Dem.), Caruthersville, predicted nothing but financial trouble ahead Monday for state and local governments unless they start living within their income.

He told the Jefferson City Rotary Club it would be even more difficult to make a recent income tax increase permanent, as recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, than it was to get it passed originally for one year in the special legislative session last month.

Even if passed by the Legislature, he said, "I think it only reasonable to assume that opposition to this increase will again put it before the general public for a vote, and I feel it would be defeated again."

That's what happened last April when the voters overwhelmingly rejected an income tax increase at a referendum.

If that happened again, Patterson said, the state would be $38.6 million behind in meeting the governor's budget, counting other revenue shortcomings. He questioned whether the revenue estimates would stand up in the light of recent strikes on the metropolitan areas.

Worshiped Flower

The ancient Incas worshiped the lofty sunflower as an emblem of the sun. The plant's seeds were eaten during religious ceremonies, glittering facsimiles of pure gold were carved on temples and priestesses wore them as breastplates.

The bright streak of a meteor is usually about 20 miles above the earth's surface, although larger meteors may appear at a greater distance and approach more closely before being destroyed.

A growing wave of student dissatisfaction because they find their studies irrelevant is partially being answered by a new national program called the Industrial Arts Curriculum Project developed at Ohio State University in cooperation with the University of Illinois. The two=year program is specially designed for junior high school students with one year devoted to "The World of Construction" and the other dealing with "The World of Manufacture."

THROUGH THE IACP program, students learn how man plans, organizes and controls materials, tools, techniuqes and people to produce such goods as buildings, bridges, highways, dams, automobiles, furniture, clothing, appliances and utilities. The students themselves produce products, using methods that simulate those at the site or in the factory. For example, each student makes a complete and detailed plan for his dream home and then constructs a scale model of it.

The program was developed to make more meaningful the shop experiences of students and rather than produce such items as bookends and bird houses, they will get experience more closely related to future careers in construction and manufacturing, both of which areas expect tremendous expansion between now and the end of the century.

In field testing conducted over the last three years, the program has been met with great interest by junior high school students and in 1971, the program is ready for use in schools who wish to provide experiences and knowledge about the man-made world much like science does the natural world.

Junior high students have learned how steel structures are erected by performing rigging, handling materials and simulating actual construction. In a "work gang" they have built wooden frame structures and installed ducting, plumbing and wiring systems to learn construction techniques. The completely designed program uses films including "Careers in Carpentry" produced by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Information about the program can be obtained, from IACP headquarters at The Ohio State University, 1712 Neil Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43210.

Age Suitable Standard For Driver Tests

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Charley, over 60 years of age, was healthy as a breath of fresh air and as strong as a piece of Limburger cheese. Consequently, when he received a notice from the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles advising him that all licensed drivers over 60 had to appear for re-examination, he blew a fuse.

"IT's dsicrimination," he protested. "You can't compel one age group to appear," he told the commissioner," and not another. The fact is, I'm a better driver than all those young rock n' rollers put together. The trouble is, you peoples just don't respect age unless its bottled."

The commissioner,however, insisted upon the re-examination and Charley refused. What's more, he took the matter to court.

"There's no discrimination involved," was the commissions's defense. "It's just that when a person reaches 60 he tends to go backwards as he advances. For safety reasons, they have to be checked. That's not discrimination, that's caution."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold that re-examination was discriminatory?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a person's right to drive depends upon his fitness; that since it would be too difficult to make frequent tests of everybody, arranging tests based upon age, accidents, violations and other suitable standards was not unreasonable.

Based upon a 1962 New Jersey Superior Court, App. Div., Decision.

SHOW & TELL

I must begin by apologizing to the many people who attended the Malco's presentation of There's a Girl in My Soup. I laughed so loud and so long last night, that I stuck out like a sore thumb.

The movie is delightfully entertaining and if you aren't a Peter Sellers and Goldie Hawn fan now, you will be when the flick is over.

The story features Sellers as truly a man's man. Very similar to myself I might add. He is a womanizer from the word go. Or from any other word as far as that goes. He wines 'em, dines 'em, and so on and so on.

Goldie plays a 19-year-old freak which fits her personality fairly well. She is a panic. If you've never had the opportunity to see Goldie in any type of dramatic role this is your golden opportunity. Notice the pun?

The movie has rich overtones of the old theme that money can't buy happiness. Sellers is rich but can't get Goldie. I'm poor and I can't get her either. Must be my breath.

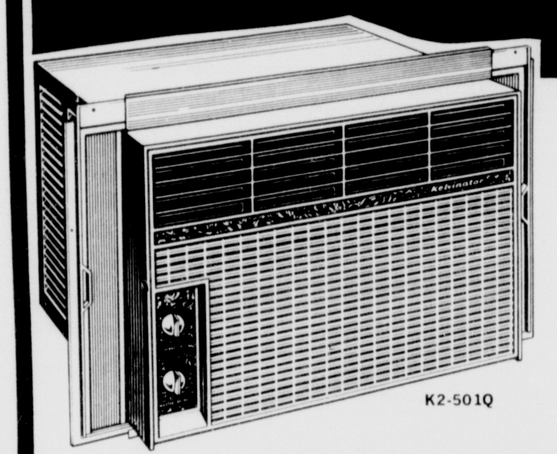

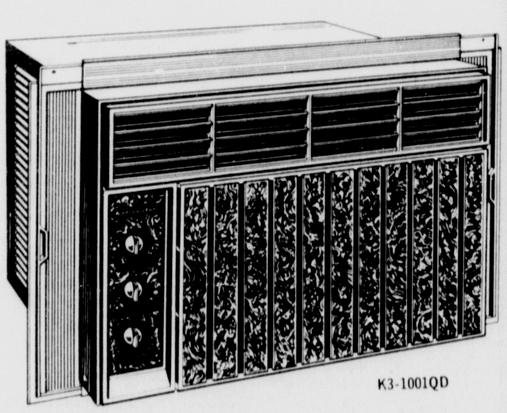

I don't want to ruin it for you, but the ending is not at all what I anticipated. It wasn't a bad ending or anything like that, but it wasn't the regular Hollywood-type ending. Bye For Now. P.S.--Goldie goes nude.

The Prayer from the upper room

I will sing with the spirit, and I will sing with the understanding also. (I Corinthians 14:15)

PRAYER: O loving Father, we thank You for friends who have drawn us near to You. We ask that we may show love and joy to any who may be worried or sad. Through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Rail Passenger System Proposal Expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today expanded the new national rail passenger system significantly to include five additional pairs of cities.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe modified his original proposal made 60 days ago to include these additional routes: New Orleans to Los Angeles, Seattle to San Diego, New York to Kansas City, Washington to Chicago, and NorfolkNewport News, Va. to Cincinnati.

In addition, Volpe said he meant his initial recommendations to make clear that Tampa-St. Petersburg would be included as end points on rail passenger runs from New York to Florida.

The expanded system as announced Thursday will go into effect May 1 when a new quasigovernment National Rail Passenger Corp., commonly known as Railpax, will take over most passenger service from ailing railroads.

Volpe declined, however, to designate what routes would be used and cities served between the designated end point cities. He had been urged to do this by, among others, the Interstate Commerce Commission.

County Officials Aid Asked

KANSAS CITY (AP)–Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, apparent dean of the promised massivepublic education program on President Nixon's government reforms, is calling on county officials for help in a return to "dynamic federalism."

In Kansas City where Agnew addressed about 200 enthusiastic county officials, Lawrence K. Roos, Republican supervisor of St. Louis County, said, "No greater pressure could be exerted on Congress for passage of revenue-sharing than that from county officials."

Board Formed By Hearnes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes sent the Legislature today copies of his executive orders creating a new board of environmental protection and putting employes of the Public Service Commission and the division of liquor control under the state merit system.

He told the Legislature earlier of his plans and today's actions put them into effect, subject to legislative veto.

Hotel Funds Sought

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee was asked Wednesday for $2.5 million in emergency funds to purchase the Governor Hotel here to provide state office space and let legislators take over more of the capitol.

John D. Pauls, director of the division of planning and construction, told the committee the money would pay the acquisition and remodeling cost and still leave enough to buy some adjoining land for possible use as a complex of office buildings at a later date.

The request does not include a breakdown of costs for the project.

Sen. A. Clifford Jones, RClayton, said he did not see how the committee could talk about purchasing the hotel without having a specific offer in the request.

One committee member later remarked, "You don't give a blank check and say use the rest for repairs."

Paulus said the hotel would not satisfy all the state's needs for office space-- "it would merely be a stop gap measure." Yet it would provide additional space to let some agencies, now scattered around the capital city, consolidate their offices, he said.

Dr. C. Brice Ratchford of Columbia, interim president of the University of Missouri, asked for $544,666 to avoid reducing the quality of education at the University of Missouri Medical School.

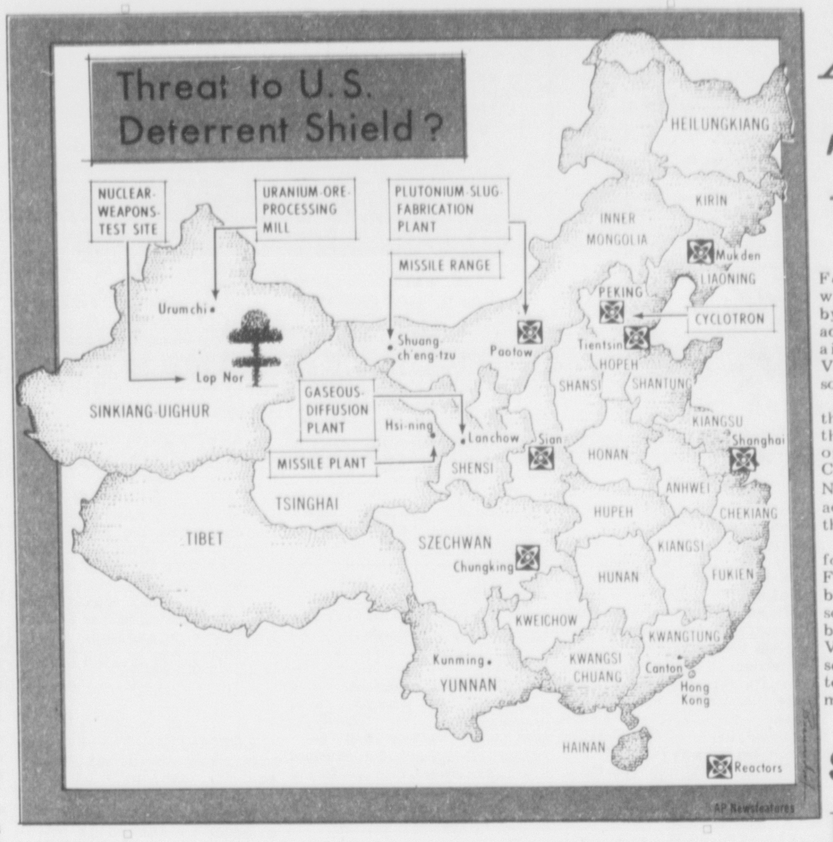

Ratchford said the money would be used to re-open a ward at the medical center and to counteract some of the drastic steps the university has been forced to take in the last six months to reduce operating costs.

"The hospital is absolutely necessary for the training of medical students," Ratchford said. "I'm not being threatening, but we are going to have to reduce the quality of our program without additional funds."

"What bothers us," said Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, "is that we put $13 million into the medical program, pay all the salaries and other costs. Then you charge $93.50 for Medicaid patients a day and you say you are still losing money."

Dr. William Mayer, medical school dean, said the state is paying for the school which is serving 3,000 students, including its 400 medical students and 200 nurses.

"We're an institution that provides care for patients who have complex or severe illnesses," Mayer said. "Seventy per cent of the money goes for salaries and wages. The kind of services we provide is more expensive than most hospitals because of the medical teaching program."

China Builds Nuclear Arsenal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States and the Soviet Union still rule the nuclear roost, but China is narrowing the gap more quickly than either superpower expected.

This supposedly primitive land, which touched off its first crude nuclear blast in October 1964, then startled the world with mighty hydrogen explosion 32 months later, has placed top priority on developing a first grade nuclear weapons system.

At one time, arms experts nervously speculated that Peking might be planning a suicidal attack on one of the superpowers. But the general opinion is now that the Chinese are desperately seeking a deterrent against an attack they feel may come someday from either the United States or Russia.

At least that is the message sent forth from Peking's propaganda mills. Each Chinese test is followed by a rash of claims that Peking must take these measures to counter the "nuclear threats and blackmail" of the United States and the Soviet Union. Despite its limited resources and relatively small number of specialists in this field, China has developed an impressive complex of atomic and missle facilities. But just how far they have progressed is a question still shrouded in mystery.

Moscow gave the Chinese some help in the nuclear field in the 1950s, but after the ideological war erupted between the two Communist giants, all such assistance was halted. In 1959, Peking charged that Moscow reneged on an agreement and refused "to provide China with a sample of an atomic bomb and techincal data concerning its manufacture."

Despite this setback, the Chinese managed to set up a costly gaseous-diffusion plant at Lanchow designed to enrich the natural uranium of which the Chinese have plenty.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has stated that the Chinese began work on a ballistic missile production facility back in 1963. A major missile test range has been located near Shuang-ch'eng-tzu in the northwest, and a big warhead testing center has been established in the far west near Lake Lop Nor.

Although the number of Chinese nuclear scientists is limited, there are some outstanding ones. Some were educated in the United States or Europe before 1949, and many attended the Joint Nuclear Research Institute at Dubna near Moscow.

More than four years ago, the Chinese delivered a low yield atomic warhead by missile. In April 1970, they launched an earth satellite that was believed to have utilized an upgraded medium-range ballistic missile as a booster.

The Defense Department has estimated that the Chinese may develop the capability of fire an intercontinental ballistic missile by 1973 and have 10 to 25 in operational condition by 1975.

It has been estimated that the cost of this program ranges from $500 million to $1.5 billion a year; small potatoes by Western standards but a heavy burden on the Chinese economy.

Possession of Peking of even a limited number of ICBMs could give it the blackmail capability that it so frequently attributes to the United States and Russsa.

900 Ask Election on Liquor by the Drink

Supporters of the liquor by the drink proposal announced today that more than 900 signatures have been received on petitions calling for the issue to be brought before the voters.

Goerge Butler, manager of the Holiday Inn, said that 25 petitions are still out.

The petitioners need nearly 1,400 signatures before presenting the request to the city council.

Missouri state law prohibits a special election for liquor by the drink until after the general election in April and Butler said by that time. it is expected that the needed number will be received.

Opposition to the petitions rose quickly following first reporters of the movement. Churches voiced disapproval and waged a campaign against the issue.

When sufficient names are received Butler said the petitions would be presented to the council to assure an election as soon as possible.

More than 30 volunteers worked for tw o weeks to obtain the 900 signatures.

$949,460 Grant Given To DAEOC

PORTAGEVILLE - The Office of Economic Opportunity has awarded a $949,460 grant to the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, to provide for the administration and management of the community action agency in 1971 in aiding 16,600 area residents in Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott, and Stoddard counties, Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas Eagleton and Congressman Bill Burlison announced in Washington, D.C.

"The grant provides money for the administration, neighborhood service centers, job development and placement, vocational training, housing services, emergency food and medical services, youth development programs, and general services," Camille Huber, director of DAEOC at Portageville, said.

"The money also includes salaries for the 157 employes here as well as services for 20,000 participants in the DAEOC program."

Bill Asks State to Share City Police Salary Load

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An effort to ease the financial plight of the cities reached the Missouri House today in the form of a bill requiring the state to pay a quarter of the cost of police salaries in all cities of 1,000 population or more.

A fiscal note attached to the bill said the cost in the year beginning July 1, would be $12,978,123.

The measure was introduced by Reps. John Conley and Johnnie S. Aikens, both St. Louis Democrats.

Two minority Republicans, Reps. George parker, Columbia, and Robert E. Young, Carthage, offered a bill establishing a permanent joint committee of the legislature to review all rules filed by state agencies or offices.

The committee would, after its review, report its recommendations to the Legislature and the House and Senate could either amend, reject or approve any rule. The committee would be composed of five representatives and five senators.

Another new bill calls for a single primary ballot with all authorized party candidates listed. The voter could vote for only one party but he would be freed of the necessity of entering the polling place and announcing the party he wished to vote for.

The State would pay the full cost, instead of 50 per cent, of distributing surplus foods under another bill. It was estimated the annual cost would amount to $694,422.

Other new bills introduced would:

Regulate the manufacture, dispensing, prescribing, administering, and compounding of any barbiturate, stimulant or hallucinogenic drug.

Make it unlawful to try to acquire barbiturates, stimulants or hallucinogenic drugs by fraud. The privileged communication between doctor and patient would not apply if the patient attempted to get a prescription of such drugs through fraud or deceit.

Base state aid to schools on enrollment instead of average daily attendance, thus sharply increasing the amound of aid the state would have to provide.

Require an accused person to notify the prosecuting attorney at least 10 days before trial if he intends to use alibi as a defense.

Give second class county court district judges a $2,500 annual increase and the presiding judge $4,500 for the duty of inspecting polling places.

Establish a commission on the retirement, removal or disciplining of judges.

Add a third judge in the 11th Judicial Circuit after Dec. 31, 1972. The circuit is composed of Lincoln, Pike and St. Charles counties.

Let utilities offer free or reduced rates to their officers, employes and certain professionals on retainer.

Bar any insurance company writing group health or accident insurance from reducing any payment because the policy holder has other insurance covering the same claim.

Ban the present requirement that an applicant for state employment must get a political endorsement.

The House advanced three bills and laid another one over when it appeared headed for fiscal trouble.

Laid over was bill that would increase the State Board of Probation and parole membership from three to five and boost their salaries.

All Air Force Units Reported To Exit Vietnam by End of '72

SAIGON (AP)--All U.S. Air Force combat units are to be withdrawn from South Vietnam by the end of 1972, leaving only advisers and technicians, if the air war is sufficiently Vietnamized by then, military sources said today.

Meanwhile, the sources said, the United States is conducting the heaviest bombing campaign of the war in Laos and Cambodia in an effort to force North Vietnam "to make accommodations" and to pave the way for the withdrawal.

"Our present timetable calls for the withdrawal of all Air Force units from South Vietnam by the end of 1972," said one source. "Hopefully 1973 will begin with no U.S. squadrons in Vietnam, if everything is on schedule. But advisers and technicians will remain. How many, I can't say now."

The Sources also left open the possibility that even after all American squadrons are pulled out of Vietnam, the United States will continue to provide air support for its allies in Indochina from bases in Thailand and from aircraft carriers of the 7th Fleet.

The Sources said up to 500 U.S. warplanes from the Air Force,Navy and Marine Corps are making daily raids on North Vietnamese troops and supply route in Laos and Cambodia.

Some attacks are in direct support of South Vietnamese, Cambodian and Laotian troops fighting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong. But about 75 per cent of the raids are against enemy supply routes, depots and troops along the Ho Chi Minh trail through southern Laos.

The Sources said the effectiveness of the campaign won't be known until May, when the current dry season ends. North Vietnam makes its big movement of troops and supplies southward during the dry season because the jungle roads and trails are much less passable in the monsoon season.

Withdrawal of all U.S. squadrons in the next two years depends on three factors, the sources said:

1. The effect the campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail has in reducing North Vietnam's effectiveness to fight and to launch major offensives while U.S. forces are being withdrawn;

2. Some accommodation by the North Vietnamese in scaling down their activities;

3. Progress in the training and capabilities of the South Vietnamese air force.

The U.S. Air Force now has 30 air squadrons in South Vietnam, with a total of more than 700 aircraft and 42,200 men. No squadrons are being withdrawn during the current sixth-phase cutback of American troops that will reduce authorized U. S. strength to 284,000 men by May 1.

The South Vietnamese air force has 32 squadrons, 700 planes and helicopters, and about 40,000 men. The present goal is 50 squadrons and 1,200 planes and helicopters..

In the war, the U. S. Command reported that 50 Americans were killed in action in Indochina last week, an increase of 13 over the previous week. A spokesman attributed the rise to two air crashes that killed 14 Americans.

Another 25 U. S. servicemen died of nonhostile causes last week, and 295 were wounded in action, the command said.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 274 of its men killed and 816 wounded last week. The allies claimed 1,998 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong Troops killed.

Little ground action was reported today in Vietnam, but three grenades ripped through a theater in coastal Binh Dinh Province, killing 10 Vietnamese and wounding 19. The South Vietnamese command said the grenades were thrown by "Communist terrorists."

About 80 miles farther north, a bomb exploded in a market place, and nine Vietnamese civilians were reported killed and 22 wounded.

The incidents occurred during the four-day cease-fire declared by the Viet Cong for the lunar new year. It runs until 1 a.m. Saturday Saigon time.

In Cambodia, Viet Cong and North Vietamese troops harassed four government outposts to the west, southwest and southeast of Phnom Penh, but a spokesman said there were no allied casualties or damage.

$30,085 Grant for Police Headquarters

The city of Sikeston will receive $30,085 from the Bootheel Law Enforcement Assistance Council toward remodeling police headquarters and jail facilities.

The council last night at Malden approved grant requests of more than $68,000 for law enforcement projects in the six county area of Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, New Madrid, Dunklin and Pemiscot.

Sheriff W. J. Simmons, chairman of the council, said the action is designed to improve law enforcement and furnish help to the courts in doing a better job on probation and parole.

Bob Henzi, executive secretary of the council, said the grants were:

District 14 probation and parole office, $23,031 to provide service to the magistrate courts in Mississippi, Stoddard and Pemiscot counties.

The city of Bernie, $6,000 toward construction of a jail. Each of these grants represents 50 per cent of the total cost.

Miner, $1,658 to purchase radio and radar equipment.

Wilson City, $846 toward establishing a recreational facility as a means to better control and eliminate juvenile problems.

Bernie, $150 and Lilbourn $45 to purchase police equipment.

Henzi said that all of the equipment requests granted represent 60 per cent of the total cost. Law enforcement agencies will pay 40 per cent.

U.S. Assistance For Spillway Area

CHARLESTON--The Soil Conservation Service, Washington D.C., has approved authorization for planning assistance to the Mississippi county spillway area, covering 99,600 acres, according to a telegram signed by U. S. Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas Eagleton in Washington.

The planning involves investigation and survey for development of watershed work plans under the authority of watershed protection and flood prevention act.

Participating organizations include the Mississippi county soil and water conservation district, Mississippi county court and St. John's Levee and Drainage District, all in Charleston.

Bill Winchester, presiding judge of the Mississippi county court, said the water drainage problem created by spring rains and backup water from the Mississippi river prompted the Mississippi county court and landowners in the spill way district to seek assistance from the federal government for aid in getting rid of the surplus water.

He said the excess water poses a problem to the crops in the area each year.

This district conservation district will provide technical assistance for the planning.

Delay Refused In Gray Hearing

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID--D. W. Gray's motion to postpone a hearing on whether he made a voluntary statement in connection with the 1960 slaying of a New Madrid county deputy sheriff was overruled this morning by Circuit Judge William H. Billings of Kennett.

Gray made the motion Tuesday because of a pending decision expected from federal court whether Gray should be discharged from custody because he was not given the hearing within 90 days. The state supreme court ruled 14 months ago Gray should be given this hearing within 90 days.

Gray has been serving a 60-year prison term for the Sept. 12, 1960 shotgun slaying of deputy Cletus Phillips, who was attempting to arrest the farm laborer at a brother's farm home near New Madrid.

Gray, object of a three-day manhunt following the slaying, took the witness stand this morning after Judge Billings made his ruling.

Gray testified he was interrogated at the highway patrol headquarters in Sikeston six hours following his arrest. Gray said he gave a 22-page statement in response to more than 300 questions. Gray said he was not advised he could have an attorney and that the statement could be used against him.

Gray said he was told several members of his family were in jail and was denied contact with them by law enforcement officers.

Gray did not recall the identity of the officers involved.

Gray said he was denied a telephone call and was not advised of his rights.

The convict testified he depended on his attorneys at the time of his trial and that he only had a third grade education. He siad he did not know he could object to the use of the statement, but confirmed his attorneys did tell that some of the questions and answers in the statement would be damaging to his case.

"But I did not know I could object to the use of it (the statement)," Gray said.

Gray was questioned this morning by his own counsel, David Blanton of Sikeston, who was appointed by the state supreme court to represent him.

Judge Billings called a recess at 10 a.m. It was expected that Hal Hunter Jr., prosecuting attorney of New Madrid county, would cross-examine Gray when the hearing resumes.

There are 12 witnesses scheduled to be heard.

East Prairie to Vote on Bonds

EAST PRAIRIE--Residents will vote March 2 in a special election on a bond issue of approximately $425,000.

Approval of the bond issue will assure the installation of water, sewer and storm drain improvements for which the city has received a federal grant of $351,000 from the Economic Development Administration.

Plans call for the installation of a water treatment plant and a new well near the south end of the high school football field.

Two new sanitary sewer systems with individual lift station would be installed in the northeast and southeast areas.

Near the corner of Walnut and Nelson Streets, a 200,000 gallon elevated water storage tank would be erected to improve water pressure.

More than one mile of 10 and 12-inch pressure water mains would be installed to assure adequate water distribution and pressure. This would include the capability to deliver good quality water with adequate pressure to two proposed industrial sites.

The new water mains and elevated tank are designed to enable the city to expand the water system.

Kent Grand Jury Report Tossed out

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal judge today threw out a grand jury report on last spring's Kent State University disorder but let stand the jury's 25 indictments stemming from the disturbance.

U.S. District Court Judge William K. Thomas said the special Portage County grand jury exceeded its powers by making accusations in its report and trying facts. He said jurors violated secrecy instructions in the preparation of the report.

He ordered the report to be "physically expunged and destroyed" within 10 days.

Thomas, however, overruled defendants motions for a three-judge federal panel to study constitutionality of Ohio's antiriot law. That law was the basis for most of the 25 indictments returned by the jury. Thomas said there was no evidence to substantiate claims the law was unconstitutional.

Senate Confirms Cabinet Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today confirmed President Nixon's nomination of former GOP Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton to be the new secretary of the Interior.

Morton, until today a Republican congressman from Maryland, pledged in hearings earlier this week he will use the post to try to change the nation's priorities, placing the protection of the environment on a scale with the economy and national defense.

Confirmation was by unanimous consent; no dissenting voice was heard.

IN WINTER'S INDIAN SUMER DAYS

Spring has been in the air these past few days. The sky's been blue, the sun warm, the earth squishy under foot. The snow that had covered the ground and the ice that had sheathed the area's lakes and streams have long since melted. There have even been a few reported sightings of that harbinger of warmer weather — the red-breasted robin.

Of course this balmy reprive from winter can't last, but that only makes it all the more savorable. As a result, most persons are not taking any chances on tomorrow. They are doing some of their midwinter chores now. Such things as washing the grime off the family car, raking the lawn or just puttering around outside the house. Actually, most of these are not "chores" in the strict sense of the word. They are more like excuses — reasons to get out of the house and stay out awhile. Nevertheless, this suggests how inviting the outdoors can be after a long cold spell.

Allen Pearson, a columnist and director of the National Severe Storms Forecast center of the weather bureau here, recently wrote about the January thaw. It is often due, he explained, to "discontinuous retrogression," which is a fancy name for a west-to-east weather pattern that stops and actually backs up and thus allows warm Gulf air to sweep up from the South.

No doubt the weather pattern will get back to normal sometime soon. After all, there is still almost two months of winter left. But these last few days have been a promise of things to come — a welcome promise however fleeting.

FOR WHO'S BENEFIT?

We note with some interest the news story reporting that President Nixon has directed the U.S. Department of Justice to "begin work immediately on streamlining the government's sporadic and haphazard code of criminal laws."

"The entire code is in dire need of comprehensive reform," Mr. Nixon is reported to have said in a memo to Attorney General John N. Mitchell. The President said that he wanted a progress report within six months.

Nowhere, so far as we can see, did the President spell out any specific reasons for the called- for reforms, except for his declaration that "a thorough overhaul of the federal criminal code is long overdue, loaded as it is with law upon law passed in the course of 200 years to meet the crisis of the moment."

One purpose in the "Overhaul," we suspect, is to streamline the wheels of justice so that our courts, now bogged down with huge backlogs of untried cases, will perform more efficiently. But some of the recommendations made by the group called the "National Commission on Reform of Federal Criminal Law" leaves us with the uneasy impression that the "solution" will be to "go easy" with the criminals with little regard for the victims of crime. For example, one recommendation of the Commission is to abolish capital punishment for "any" Federal crime. "Any," we must assume, includes the heinous crimes of kidnapping and murder. Another recommendation of the Commission is to outlaw all privately owned handguns. Since the vast majority of owners of handguns are law-abiding Americans, the effect of such a measure would be to penalize the innocent, rather than increasing the penalties of those criminals who use guns in the commission of a crime.

For too long the courts - including the Supreme Court of the United States - have followed a course of leniency for criminals. It is time to think of the victims of crime - and we hope that this is what the President had in mind, and that this will be the course followed by Attorney General Mitchell in working toward "reform."

THE FOUR-DAY WEEK

Growing numbers of American workers are happily joining the Thank-God-It's - Thursday club. Companies are turning to the four-day, 40-hour week as the most efficient use of manpower. They claim it increases productivity and reduces turnover and absenteeism. As many as 11,000 workers in about 60 firms are already on shorter work weeks.

A clear sign of the spread of the idea is the contract signed Jan. 19, 1971, between the United Auto Workers and Chrysler. It calls for the establishment of a joint committee to study the establishment of a pilot program for a four-day week for assembly line workers. Douglas Fraser, head of the union's Chrysler department, says: "We think it offers some very exciting possibilities."

The nation's third largest union – the million - member United Steelworkers of America -- has added the four-day week to its list of goals in the bargaining later this year for a new contract. Riva Poor, who has made a study of the four-day week, predicts it will "sweep the country – and much faster than the five-day week replaced the six-day week."

Virtually all America industry now operates on a four-day week for 10 per cent of the year. This is due to federal legislation that has made five of the ten national holidays fall on Monday, notes Kenneth E. Wheeler in the Harvard Business Review. While larger companies are studying the four-day week, he notes that it is most widely used in small business.

The movement to a shorter work week is by no means new. As early as the 1950s, the UAW's late president, Walter Reuther, tried to include it in labor contracts he negotiated with the automobile manufacturers. A century ago, the average American worked a 12-hour day, six-day week. Time-off from work was barely sufficient to eat, take care of personal needs and sleep.

Inhumanly long working hours gave the unions an entering wedge for building up their strength in the 19th century. The eight-hour day was the rallying cry but it was a long time in coming. In each decade between 1850 and 1900 about two hours were cut from the workweek. Four hours were dropped in each decade between 1900 and 1940, when the 40-hour workweek began becoming commonplace.

The unresolved question is just how the worker will use additonal free time if there were a general swing to the four-day week. Some analysts say that continued inflation would cause many workers to moonlight -- to hold second jobs -- in order to make ends meet. Others say it would result in a slowing of the rate of growth of the Gross National Product.

But Paul A. Samuelson, the Nobel Prize-winning economist and advocate of the four-day week, disagrees. "If we use the knowledge of the newer economics, we can insure that there will be enough jobs to go around even if people should take it into their heads to work a 50 or a 60-hour week," he has written. "If, instead, people decide they want more leisure, the fact that this will slow down the rate of growth of the GNP is only a reflection of the inadequacy of the way we measure that magnitude."

Some firms have already gone beyond the four-day week. A handful of companies in New York state and other areas have put their employees on a 3-day, 12½-hour shift with four days off. Anyone for the Thank-God -It's -Wednesday club?

The pickets were from the United Farm Workers Union who wanted to see Mr. Boswell himself, the owner of Arizona's largest grape ranch. Mr. Boswell, a board member of Safeway Stores, Inc., wasn't in and therefore could not answer their question; I.e., "Would Safeway remove the horrible fruit from their shelves?" They promised they'd come back. Maybe it's just the controversy, but those grapes seem bigger and more delicious than ever.

NEW YORK (AP) — Once upon a time in a country called America a pretty little girl from England earned fame and wheelbarrow full of cash by exclaiming, "Sock it to me!"—and then letting people throw buckets of water in her face.

Millions of television fans thought the whole unlikely procedure was rib-cracking funny.

The girl was Judy Carne, and the video show—which she left last year—was "Laugh-In."

Well, time has marched on—and so has Judy. She has launched an exciting new phase of her career by becoming a star on the nation's supper club circuit. She is presently appearing at the Plaza Hotel's Persian Room.

When I called on Miss Carne recently she was clad in a long slinky green robe and resting on a bed large enough to provide a courtship space for two dromedaries and a brace of pigeons.

"It's my back that's bothering me." she said cheerfully. "It's just tension. When I get overtired, I have to take muscle relaxants and sit on a heating pad. Everybody has his weak spot—or breaks out in a rash or something."

Judy made it clear she was no disappointed fugitive from television.

"I'm grateful for the sock-itto-me tag, but I'd like to drop it pretty soon," she said. "I feel there's more to me than that."

There is indeed. Judy, the 31year-old daughter of a British greengrocer, has been a professional performer since she was 6. She is an adept and agile singer, dancer, comedienne and actress, experienced in the theater, screen and television.

But her moppet face, big brown eyes, staircase haircut and willow-thin figure still make her look like a runaway gamin from elfland. She also has an antic personality that charms audiences, and a vibrant energy both of body and spirit.

"Life to me is how I feel at the moment," she remarked. "Right now it's a trial, but tomorrow it'll be a joy.

"I guess my worst fault is probably overemotionalism. It gets me into many scrapes. But I guess it's my chief virtue, too. I have a natural sense of joy in life and in people. I like to know and all kinds of levels."

What is her goal?

"I'd love to do more straight acting," she said. "But most of all I simply want to win the respect of the industry. If you've got that, all the other things fall into place."

SAFETY AND ABUNDANCE

Remember when that new invention called DDT came on the market? As if by magic, it cleared our homes of the disease carrying housefly. Chemical pesticides came into wide use, not only in the home, but more importantly in agriculture.

As with nearly every innovation or invention, controversy arose. Fear was expressed that pesticides were poisoning o r food and posing a threat to the health of man and wildlife. Of late years, the air has gradually cleared of misunderstangind and prejudice. Chemical pesticides are now known for what they are, a revolutionary advancement in the science of agriculture.

Secretary of Agriculture Orval Freeman recognized this truth most forcefully in an Address to the Agriculture and National Resources Committees of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Of chemicals and pesticides, Mr. Freeman says, "The world can't feed a population that may reach 7 billion or more in another three decades without them. We couldn't feed our own people at the lowest cost in the wosld -- less than 18 per cent of disposable income this year -- without the help of them. This is primary."

As to the environmental problems created by the use of chemicals, he pointed out that the Department is making steady progress, and "Research in this field has been breatly expanded. We recognize the great danger from improper pesticide use. We're working constantly on better regulation, better instruction, and better information in using them."

The chemical pesticide industry itself has taken the lead in pesticide use education, even as it has ushered in a new agricultural era of unprecedented productivity.

'It is a sad fact of life that it costs a community much more to deal with delinquency than, for example, it costs for a top grade universtiy education. It costs a community $20,000 a year to deal directly with the problem of one delinquent boy; it costs $40,000 to send a criminal to prison. In contrast, it costs Boys' Village just a little more than $6,000 per boy a year to rehabilitate 9 out of 10 youngsters who get there after taking a wrong turn somewhere.'

On the financial pages of most daily newspapers appears what are known as 'averages.' Dow - Jones compiles the daily averages of common stocks of thirty industrials, twenty railroads and twenty utilities. As these averages move up or down, so does the entire market of common stocks.

These averages have been compiled daily for several decades, and, by observing their movement, a theory has been evolved, known as the Dow theory. According to this theory, the averages forecast the future trend of the stock market and general business.

The philosophy back of the theory is interesting. Many years ago W.P. Hamilton said that the theory was rooted in human nature itself. Prosperity drives men to excess; repentance for the consequence of those excesses produces a corresponding depression.

The stock market reflects the thoughts and hopes and fears of the owners of billions of dollars of capital. As these owners express themselves with their buying and selling orders, so the market goes. Since the averages are a sample of the market, they cwn be said to be a barometer, perhaps the most impartial andthe most remorseless of all barometers, because, wrote Hamilton, 'the market represents everything everybody knows, hopes, believes, anticipates.'

It is not essential to depend upon other and more complicated theories as to what people are thinking at any moment. Their thoughts are eloquently expressed in dollars and cents in the averages of representative stocks.

A Federal tax change to permit a business to put more of its earnings back into operations — a so-called "plowback allowance" — is needed now to help small business, say most of the nation's independent business proprietors.

The National Federation of Independent Business reports strong support for the measure among businessmen because higher taxes, inflation and increased interest costs are making inroads on the working capital necessary to keep a business in good health.

A Federation 50-state poll shows that 71 percent of the independent merchants and professional people favor enactment of the "plowback allowance" which has been before Congress for several years. The Federation has found support for the proposal among two - thirds or more of the owners on several occasions.

The proposal, sponsoredin the last Congress by Representative James Corman of California, would permit a business to deduct up to 20 percent of profits, before taxes, for additional investments in plant, equipment, higher inventosy or larger accounts receivable — major facets of business growth which must now be financed with after - tax earnings.

Thus a business with $20,000 pre-tax profit showing $2,000 in added inventory value and $2,000 in new equipment would get the maximum plowback deduction of $4,000, which would bring a tax savings of a lesser amount on an adjusted taxable profit of $16,000.

A limit of $30,000 on the deduction, proposed in the legislation, means the measure would be of greatest benefit to smaller businesses, the Federation says.

In Missouri, 70 percent of the responding businessmen favor the "plowback allowance", 28 percent oppose it, and 2 percent are undecided.

Nationally, the poll showed 26 percent opposed and 3 percent without a firm opinion.

A certified public accountant who said the "plowback bill is long overdue," wrote the Federation that, "I have argued for 10 years that money left in a business for working capital needs should not be taxed."

Privately - held businesses do not enjoy the same advantage as corporations, which can set aside part of their profits, tax-free, for reinvestment. "A small business or professional man should be allowed to accumulate a net worth similar to the way a corporation can accumulate $100,000 in retained earnings."

"Small business must have some tax relief and/or incentive to reinvest profits in business without paying these unfair taxes on reported earned income," wrote a California employer of eight.

A supply company owner in Indiana said, "If our customers were allowed to plow back 20 percent of their earnings it would probably keep a number of them from going out of business, plus make good companies out of average concerns."

In a separate Federation survey of businesses, 80 percent of the owners said the passage of the plowback allowance would help them expand on inventory during the present inflation - tax squeeze.

H.L. Hunt Says

CUBA'S FLIGHT

Communist Fidel Castro is going into his thirteenth year as dictator of the miserable state of Cuba and his position, while not in danger apparently, is not enviable. Reports coming out of Cuba indicate that the production of sugar is running behind schedule, people are malingering, tobacco business is down and sabotage is increasing.

The island people have other problems, too, including increasing pressure from Russia to participate in decision-making. Intelligence reports indicate that the Soviets already have moved into many Cuban fields recently, including participation in the direction of the economy.

Moscow has huge investments in Cuba--some say over a million dollars a day--and the Kremlin wants to protect them. As Castro gets deeper in the mire of a sick economy, it is a good bet that the Russians will get tougher and widen their influence.

The Soviets now have two major bases in the Western hemisphere. Cuba, which fell to communist subversion and revolution, and Chile which at least made it formal through the ballot box. Some observers feel that Chile is Russia's best bet so far as the Kremlin seeks to spread the gospel of communism throughout the Americas and the world. Castro must be aware of this as he struggles to maintain a degree of freedom from Russian dictates.

But he will find, like other countries have, that the Kremlin is a demanding taskmaster. The Russians could care less about the Castro ego. And Chile, the new Western Hemisphere darling of the Soviets, will learn its lesson, probably after it is too late. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Civil Aeronautics Chairman Secor D. Browne, who cast the swing vote last year for awarding valuable Pacific air routes to Pan American Airlines, has developed a cozy relationship with Pan Am executives. Here are the eyebrow-raising details:

Since his appointment to head the CAB, Browne has taken two winter vacations at the secluded Caribbean beach house of Pan Am vice president James Leet. The CAB chairman spent several days last January at Leet's three-bedroom, seaside winter home on Grenada in the Windward islands. Again this month, he went back for another siesta in the sun. Both men insist, however, that Browne paid the regular rental of a $35 a day.

Last May, Browne took his girl friend, Constance Haden, with him on an official trip to Tokyo. En route home, they stopped off at retired Pan Am vice president Sam Pryor's private paradise, complete with lush foilage and 37 sparkling waterfalls, on the Hawaiian island of Maui. It should be added that the government didn't pay Constance's expences and that Browne later married her.

Browne's right-handman at the CAB, Erastus Horning, resigned last April to join Pan Am. The airline put him in charge of its delicate Moscow operations.

We reached Browne at his Caribbean hideaway, where he takes calls for 30 minutes each afternoon at the nearest available telephone. He admitted that he was staying at Leet's beach house, also that he and Constance had visited Pryor's paradise on their way home from Tokyo where he represented the U.S. at an airport operator's convention.

"I rent from Leet at the same price as anyone else," said the CAB chairman. "I don't see anything wrong with it." He made the arrangements directly with Leet rather than go through a rental agency. "That way, he doesn't have to pay 10 per cent to a broker," explained Browne.

The use of a beach house, a visit to Maui, the hiring of an aide may not seem serious. But these episodes illustrate the chumminess that often exists between the government regulators and the people they regulate.

Browne voted last year to award an important network of air routes, serving the Micronesian islands in the Pacific, to Pan. Am. His vote gave Pan Am a crucial, three-to-two CAB majority. Browne's personal relationships raise the question whether he made this multi-million-dollar decision as a favor to friends.

GIs SHORT CHANGED

We continue to hear from GIs around the world that their barracks, vehicles and equipment are falling into disrepair.

We received 86 handwritten complaints, for example, about the barracks at Ft. Meade, Md. "I wouldn't bring my pet dog in here." grumped one GI. The post's preventive medicine officer, after inspecting 13 barracks, agreed that they were "not suitable for human habitation."

Because of military cutbacks, apparently, some Army camps are short of replacement parts and maintenance supplies. Our investigation also indicates that it's the enlisted men invariable who are short-changed.

The top brass still seem to be able to get staff cars, stuffed chairs and luxury items without difficulty. Nor is there any apparent shortage of GI servants who are still available to wait on the brass hats.

GIs at Ft. Meade, in contrast, complained of long periods of no heat, no hot water, inoperable drinking fountains, clogged sinks and toilets, broken windows and doors, empty fire extinguishers and fire exits nailed shut.

Some wrote that their barracks were infested with rats and roaches. The condition, some feared, could breed disease. Others found it hard to sleep in the cold or to shave and shower without hot water.

"I am tired of going to bed at night with my field jacket and gloves on" to keep warm, wrote one soldier.

"When we did have heat," reported another, " the gases from the coal smoke would keep us awake coughing."

Capt. Robert J. Master, the preventive medicine officer who found the barracks unsuitable for human habitation, found temperatures in many buildings ranged from 45 to 55 degrees, far below the 68 to 72 degrees prescribed by Army regualations.

Even at those low temperatures, poisonous sulfur dioxide leaked from defective, antiquated coal-burning furnaces. The captain's report, dated January 12, also cited other violations of health standards and Army regulations.

Lt. Louis J. Font, a 1968 West Point graduate, complained last November about living conditions in the dilapidated, wooden, World War II-vintage barracks. When he got no action, he threatened to appeal to Congress and the press.

For his pains, he received an order on January 15 from the post commander, Col. A.W. Alexander, forbidding him to release information to the press without command approval.

A spokesman vigorously denied that deplorable conditions exist at Ft. Meade. His statement was characterized as "an obvious coverup" by Lt. Frank G. Solecki, executive officer of Company B, the unit most severly affected. But after inquiries from us and Rep. Parren Mitchell, Captain Master told us he conducted another inspection and found conditions improved.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

EXCLUSIVE: Nixon Warns Hard Hat Friends To Stop Inflating Nation In One Year or else...

WASHINGTON: -- It was a soft sell in the crowded Cabinet Room -- but the velvet-covered words were tough enough. President Nixon spoke not in sorrow, but in anger and not as a supplicant -- as he conversed with labor and business leaders of the convulsive, $98 billion construction industry on which hangs much of this nation's bread and butter prosperity and ability to come in out of the economic cold.

Having made it clear that Monday noontime, Jan. 18, that he still was going steady with the hard hats, though their hearts belong to daddy, meaning George Meany, the President laid it on the line.

His tone was fraternal. In effect, he told the industry it has the "calendar year of 1971" to stop escalating the cost of homes, hospitals, roads and schools and apartments, defenses and skyscrapers or else...

You will read stories reporting the President said come back in 30 days. He did. And that six-man committee has been created to hold the buck on the line. It was. But don't expect instant deflation. The President doesn't.

The big news is he 's given both sides in the industry a year and he's given them his word that they either straighten out and fly low -- or he'll move. And whether Richard Nixon is your conception of a President or not -- do take it for granted that he means what he says. And this is how he said it:

"If we don't give evidence of responsibility in calendar '71 there will be a reaction in this country and the administration will be forced to act in ways it doesn't want to. Everybody is watching you.

"I am not going to tell you what to do. That's for you to decide. Step up to this thing and give me a plan in 30 days...I am not suggesting that if you don't do this (take some action-VR) we will do that. I express confidence in both sides...."

The President asserted he did not expect either side to do what was not in their "long-term interest" but that "people, and not just sophisticated people, see this as an industry that seems to be pushing along not only not in the public interest but also not in its own interest."

Up to the last moment before he had walked into the Cabinet Room a few minutes after 12 o'clock, he had been pressured by some of his staff -- with the outstanding exception of The Office of Management and Budget (TOMB) chief George Shultz -- to slap the building union leaders down hard, to kill some laws on high prevailing wages (David-Bacon) and to set up some sort of wage-price controls in the construction field. But he said positively no.

It is now axiomatic that he is fond of the hard hats. For a swift, single moment there was a John Kennedy touch in his attitude toward the construction contractors. It seeped out of his off-the-cuff conservation to the 40 men around the table, half of them labor leaders, half business men.

"There isn't anyone in the country who has given us (the administration -- VR) greater support than American labor," remarked the President.

The he disclosed where every President's anguish really has been these past decades -- on the foreign front.

"Frankly,"said he, "when some of American business was showing a lot of spinal weakness, American labor stood up."

But the President was aware of the topic on the table, and he added, obviously addressing the score or so of AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades general presidents and high officials:

"You have stuck your necks out before. And I want you to stick it (sic) out again for the President."

This followed his saying,"I appreciate the pressure from below."

He had begun the entire discussion with the observation that, "the construction industry's problems are so closely related to the hope of this country. I have said I would like to resist as much as possible calling in heads of labor and industry and blaming them for the cost of wages and the cost of prices." He talked of the growth of housing and hope of building 1.5 million to 2 million units in a good year.

But he wasn't clobbering -- not simplly because the hard hat leaders had walked shoulder to shoulder with him on the line of foreign policy but because he knew that the rank and file could cut off those necks if they were stuck way out.

The rank and file has become greedy, impatient, tough, and sometimes violent. It wants it all yesterday -- and if not, it wants enough to catch up on a year of yesterdays. Just look around.

Last year the average constuction strike ran 44 days. In Rhode Island the glaziers have continued their strike begun last Sept. 1. They're blocking the completion of schools, hospitals, homes, commercial buildings – and the jobs of others. They're asking for an increase of $180 (for a 40-hour week) in the new three-year contract.

Last year the average wage increase was 15.7 per cent a year. But just the other day five Jacksonville, Fla., construction craft unions rejected a 30 per cent annual increase -- about an additional $80 a week in an area where the work goes round the warm year.

And in Joliet, Ill., the iron workers demand is for $3 a hour more in one year -- or about $120 a week more. In Richmond, Va., plumbers turned down an increase of 20 per cent a year, or 60 per cent over three years.

And there are 1,368 contracts to go. They're firing up the nation. Actually, almost nothing can stop them if they refuse to work.

Well, the President gives them a year to cool it -- or else. We'll see.

Can Chiropractors Cure?

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago a fellow my husband works with got sick on the job. He refused to go to the company doctor and said he had his own specialists -- a chiropractor. Today the man was back at the mill feeling fine. He told my husband if more people went to chiropractors instead of to society doctors they'd be better off. He claims all ailments are tied up with the nerves of the spine and the chiropractor knows which nerves press to get the person well. He says it's much cheaper than fancy medical care, because the doctors are in cahoots with the drug manufacturers and all they are interested in is money.

We have been reading your column for years and we believe in that you say. What are your views on chiropractors? -- Pittsburgh People

Dear People: Chiropractors are wonderful -- if you have a tired back, and nothing else. But if you are sick I hope you will go to a physician who has been licensed by his state's Board of Medical Examiners.

Many illnesses are self-limiting. This means they disappear without treatment. A person who has been massaged by chiropractor and gets well often credits the chiropractor with having cured him. The truth is, he'd probably have been cured if he had fanned himself with goofus feathers. This is why most chiropractors do such a thriving business.

Massaging the spine will not cure a brain tumor, cancer, diabetes or gallstones. Nor will it cure a skin disease or a throat infection. The following testimony was given to a Congressional committee considering the question, "Should chiropractors be included in Medicare?"

"It is the universal opinion of health experts that chiropractors lack the proper training and background to diagnose and treat human disease. The education of chiropractors is sub-standard and unscientific and the theory on which treatment is based is medically unsound."

Dear Ann Landers: Please state you opinion on women in pantsuits. My husband announced when the pantsuit came out that if I ever wore such an outfit he would not be seen with me. He hates them.

Last week I tried on several pantsuits just to see how I'd look. (I loathe the midi, and the mini is definitely out.) I thought I looked great. How do you feel about women in pantsuits? ---Chomping At The Bit In Bellingham

Dear Bell: The pantsuit is for the tall, slim-hipped gal with a flat tummy and small caboose. The trousers must be well cut and the jacket must be strategically proportioned. In my opinion, the pantsuit can be smashing on the right figure. On the wrong figure it can be a disaster. (Your husband has probably seen some of the walking disasters.) Since he has stated such strong opposition against the pantsuit, that should settle the queston for you, Petunia.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 13. Mother says I'm too young to date. She also says I'm too young to drive, and too young to be out after curfew. The law says, I'm also too young to drink, too young to smoke and too young to work. What can a girl my age do? ---Bored

Dear Bored: You can study hard and accomplish something in school. You can make worthwhile friends and develop interests that will broaden your scope and contribute something to others. You can help your mother around the house and take some of the burden off her shoulders. And you can be thankful what you have a mother who won't let you step all over her and do as you please.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Senf for her booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Nurses Association Meeting Here

The Eighth District Missouri Nurses' Association will meet Feb. 4, at 8 p.m. at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

The program will be presented by Sister Goretti McClore, Pharmacist at St. Francis Hospital, Cape Girardeau, Missouri, and James L. Hendrickson, Pharmacist at Southeast Missouri Hospital, also in Cape. Sister will speak on the "I.V. Additive System," a system of adding medications to intravenous fluids in the pharmacy rather than on a nursing unit. Hendrickson will discuss the "unit Dose System of Drug Distribution." Both systems are designed to free the nurses from non-nursing responsibilities and to provide a safer method of drug distribution to the patient in the hospital.

Southeast Missouri Hospital and St. Francis Hospital are the first hospitals in Southeast Missouri to initiate these systems.

Officers, committee chairmen, committee members, and board members of the Association for 1971-72 will be announced at this meeting.

Fashion

PARIS (AP) — Like termites, the minidress is gradually eating its way back into fashion.

Like many women, Emanuel Ungaro, who showed this morning, wasn't quite at ease with the long length. So he hiked up a lot of his hemlines to a generous six inches above the knee and added shorts.

Prints, prints and more prints, designed as always by Sonia Knapp, color the Ungaro mood for summer. Daisies, bubbles, stripes and polka dots—and combinations thereof—come in red, black and white, navy and white, not to mention lavender, turquoise, mustard and green.

These are mixed carefully to give an at random feeling. Different ones go on double-breasted blazers and coats, skirts, shorts and scarfs all piled on top of each other. On the legs are black and orange opaque stockings, patterned of course.

And the more leg that sticks out of his soft-printed silk dresses, the better. Whether very short, at the knee or ending at mid-calf for evening, the silhouette grazes the hip and changes to a flurry of pleats at the dropped waist. The longer the dress, the lower the waist.

Along with many designers Guy Laroche, who also showed this morning, has settled on shorts plus a semireturn to the '40s.

There are the popular all-inone shorts and top, cuffed bermudas under a long belted jacket and skirts slit to expose the shorts below.

Hubert de Givenchy descended from his Olympian heights for his spring collection and revelled in a riot of color, sheer paisley and patchwork floral prints giving daring—though never offbeat—treatments.

Drama stepped forth with the first beachwear and playsuits favoring terry cloth. Color contrasts were favored, halving the model back and front or in pro-file.

Givench is all for shorts, revealing them beneath slashed skirts or more often under seethrough paisley, or floral printed or plain organz a skirts.

Givenchy's fabric story stresses denim, rustic linen, cotton prints and terry. For coats he favors printed stretch, plain wool and two-tone woven checks.

A Paris confectioner, Nicolas Appert, discovered how to preserve foods in 1809, using glass bottles immersed in boiling water, to win a government prize of 12,000 francs.

RELICS SCARCE

DARTMOUTH, Canada (AP) — Dartmouth's Heritage Museum is attempting to uncover a part of the city's lost heritage — the MicMac Indians. Museum director G.S. Gosley says artefacts and materials related to the MicMac tribes which formed an important part of Dartmouth's heritage are scarce. He said, "We recently revised our MicMac display after acquiring several arrow heads and articles of clothing, but it is still very small. We are looking for anything connected with the nomadic tribes which made their homes all over the province."

Abortion at the Capitol

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Groups for and against efforts to amend Missouri's abortion law campaigned at the capitol this week even though no legislation to do the job has been introduced in either House or Senate.

A delegation of more than 400 representing anti-abortion interest groups presented petitions today to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. Joplin, St. Louis, Kansas City, Jefferson City and Springfield were represented either in the group or on the petitions.

Wednesday, the Missouri Commission on the Status of Women, which recommended in its 1969 report reform of the laws on abortion, had a special luncheon to voice its views. Five of the eight women in the House of Representatives pledged support to reforms or outright repeal.

One member of the anti-abortion delegation asked the governor for equal representation on the Commission. The governor explained the commission had no appropriations for its operation and was one over which he had no control.

The delegation gathered outside the office of Sen. John D. Schneider, D-Florissant, who told the group any changes in abortion laws would have to first overcome the fact that it involves "destruction of a life."

"It is a question of changing the attitude of society toward the dignity of life," he said.

The Shorts Have It!

PARIS (AP) — Dior relegated the short shorts craze to its boutique today and settled for knee-length bermudas in its haute couture collection for spring. Skirt lengths were held at about two inches below the knee for daytime and at the ankle for evening.

Designer Marc Bohan presented a line of dresses and suits with squared and sometimes padded -shoulders. The approach to spring was with pastels and light, airy fabrics.

Tailored suits featured a longer jacket, often three-quarters in length and softly belted in self-fabric tie.

Dior's dress silhouette is a triple one. Shirtwait dresses are favored, with box-pleated shirts. There is also the contour shift, as well as many dresses with fuller skirts, belt-marked waistlines and full soft sleeves.

In keeping with the soft feminine silhouette, Dior shows elbow-length cape sleeves, often slashed to lend lightness. This goes through every hour of the day and even appears on some coats.

And forgive us our debts, As we also have forgiven our debtors.—(Matt. 6:12).

Unforgiving thoughts do not help anyone. Our minds are too vital and important to be influenced by any thoughts that are not constructive and helpful. Today, have only good thoughts toward others and toward ourselves. Tomorrow there will be nothing to forgive.

Gary Owens

POINT LOOKOUT--As spring training begins in the baseball parks of the professionals no rookie player will be experiencing higher hopes than Gary Owens, nationally rated player from The School of the Ozarks, as he starts his senior year of play. Owens, who recently received the NAIA Big Stick award for his .500 batting average for 1970, starts a 22 game schedule for the S of O Bobcats in March hopeful of attracting further attention from scouts for the big leagues.

The 6-foot-1, 175 pound utility man will complete his college work at the end of the summer session and is hopeful that he can realize his ambition of becoming a professional baseball player. His father, Roy Owens, Route 4, Sikeston, Mo., had played semi-pro ball and had tutored him so well that when he graduated from Scott County Central high school he received the offer of a contract with Los Angeles. He turned the bid down in order to go to college in Florida. He transferred to S of O two years ago where his playing has been observed several times by a Detroit scout.

Although he also plays basketball, Gary's interest lies largely in baseball. He is a physical education major at The School where he anxiously awaits the opening of the 1971 collegiate season. He hopes he can turn in a new record that will bring offers of contracts from the professionals.

Gary participated in Connie Mack baseball at Sikeston, where he was a member of a pair of national finalest in the World Series.

While at SCCHS he was a member of the school's first state tournament entry and was named to a number of prep cage star teams.

Pepper Rodgers Names Assistants

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pepper Rodgers, UCLA's new football coach, added three assistants to his staff Tuesday, giving him a total of nine.

A university spokesman said the three are Ken Blair, 29, assistant football coach at the University of Colorado for five years; Lynn Styles, 29, assistant at Utah and Iowa for eight years, and Ron May 31, who assisted Rodgers at Kansas last year.

Reserve Sparks Panther Drive

LILBOURN---Melvin Nesbitt came off the bench in the second half and sparked top seeded Lilbourn into the championship game of the New Madrid county tournament Wednesday night, scoring 12 points, pulling nine rebounds and igniting a devastating fast break that eliminated Parma, 80-65.

Coach Larry Warren's Panthers cagers literally burned the nets off in the second half, pouring in 52 points to run its season record to 14-3. Parma was left with a 16-5 season slate.

Lilbourn's sharp shooting moved them into a 19 point advantage during the final minute of the contest as their fast break and out-side accuracy ended any hopes that the Pirates had of unseeding the host.

Big 6-foot-3 Charles Blair pumped in 20 points, 12 coming in a big 28 point fourth quarter, to lead the LHS offense that included 19 by Jerome Wilderness and 10 by David Williams along with Nesbitt's 12 and scoring by three other players.

Parma's David Williamson led all scorers for the game, netting 23 points while David Wright added 19 and Joe White 13.

Coach Warren takes his cagers into Friday's title bout against the winner of Thursday night's New Madrid -- Matthews clash in hopes of becoming the first person to have played on a New Madrid county title team and return to lead another quintet to the title.

Warren was on the Parma team that claimed the county honors the last time the tournament was held at Lilbourn.

New Madrid upset second seeded Matthews in Wednesday's opening action, 47-44.

Sylvester Sims pumped in 17 points and Bill St. Mary added 12 for the Indians. Audie Davis netted 19 for the MHS's leadership and high game honors.

Action resumes tonight with semi-final bouts set in both A and B divisions. Lilbourn's top seeded Panthers face Gideon in the B opener at 6:30 p.m. while New Madrid goes against Matthews in the 8 p.m. varsity contest.

Team Play Singled Out As Mizzou's Success

KANSAS CITY (AP)---What makes Missouri's basketball Tigers click?

Team play, says Coach Norm Stewart, whose squad leads the Big Eight Conference with a 3-0 mark and boasts an 11-4 over-all record.

Noting that four of the five starters have scoring averages in double figures, Stewart said, "This group has worked hard and they're deserving of all the success they have had so far."

Steward, who is in his fourth year at MU, said "It's been a team proposition all the way."

Henry Smith, the only returning regular from last year's 14-11 squad, spearheads the Tigers. He has scored 329 points in 15 games for a 21.9 average; Stewart appears to have settled on a front line of Smith and John Brown, both 6-foot-7, and Bob Allen, 6-foot-8.

Greg Flaker and Mike Griffin hold down the guard spots. Flaker, who sparked Mizzou to an 80-72 victory over Kansas State, is hitting on 56.4 per cent of his shots.

And Griffin, the fastest man on the team, "can stir things up," Stewart said.

"When we beat K-State here," said Stewart, "Smith -- leading scorer-was the one who passed off for two layups that helped us break away."

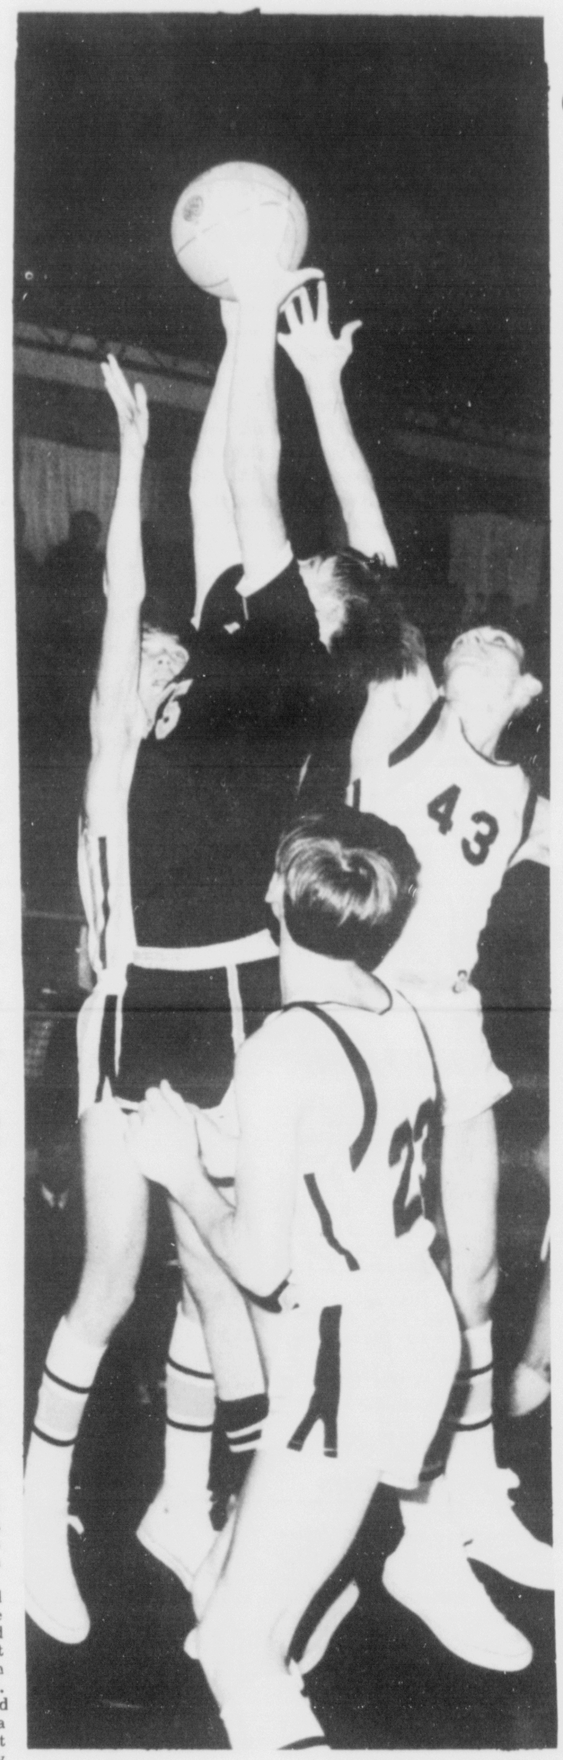

Brown, who has appeared in only seven games, has a 13.6 point a game average while Allen is at 13.3 and Flaker at 10.1.

The 3-0 Big Eight mark is the best start any Missouri basketball team has posted since the 1954-55 season. The last time a Tiger squad won its first four league games was in 1946-47.

MU will try to equal and better that when the Tigers take on Oklahoma, 2-2, in a televised game Saturday afternoon at Norman, and clash with Oklahoma State Monday night.

The Sooners defeated Missouri 70-63 in a second-round Big Eight tournament game at Kansas City in December.

SPORTS CORNER

KANSAS CITY AREA:

Bishop Hogan of Kansas City is now 13-1 after winning three games last week....KC Rockhurst stands 11-1 after winning from Bishop Miege of KC, Kan. Friday.

A season's opening loss to Rockhurst ended a 31-game home court winning streak for defending state Class L champion, Raytown South. It also ended their 27-game win streak.

Independence Truman shot at a 58 percent clip, but still lost to William Chrisman 84-77 in a run, shot affair recently. Chrisman hit 56 percent. The win tied the two Independence schools at 10-10 in their rivalry. 6-6 Mike Matthews had 36 for Truman, just two shy of their school record.

William Chrisman and Ruskin are currently tied for the Suburban Eight lead...a surprising development since they were picked for 7th and 8th respectively in the early season balloting. Chrisman is 10-4....Ruskin stands 8-3, under new coach Ken Quest, former Fulton High School coach.....Chrisman is aiming for its 11th winning season in the last 12.. They have gone to the state five times and to the regional finals seven times....The Bears set a new school record in winning from KC Southwest 101-66 in the Chrisman Holiday Tourn....previous mark was 94 on Jan. 4, 1966 against Oak Park....

St. Mary's of Independence is 13-3 so far for what is their best start in history...Jim Eskew is coach and Ed DeSchepper is leading scorer...he's a 6-2 junior....St. Mary's had won only 37 and lost 165 from 1959 to 1969...last year under Eskew they were 1709...All loses have been to Class L and M teams.

When Oak Grove lost to Odessa 85-59 on Jan. 15 it marked the first time it had ever lost in 1970 league play. The Panthers had won 30 in a row over four previous seasons in taking all four titles. Oak Grove is 101-16 the past four years, but stand only 6-7 this season.

Odessa is 14-2 with both losses being to Class L teams, Blue Springs and Fort Osage. Santa Fe of Alma is 12-1.

CENTRAL SECTION

Hermann continues to roll, they allowed Mark Twain of Center only 19 points Tuesday in winning 66-19 in the first round of the Bowling Green Tournament...it was the second time this year they have held Mark Twain under 20 points..they won earlier 32-12.... The Bearcats are 17-1 this season and 82-2 for the past four years... have 32 game winning streak in Four Rivers Conference.

BASKETBALL RULES
Simplified and Illustrated

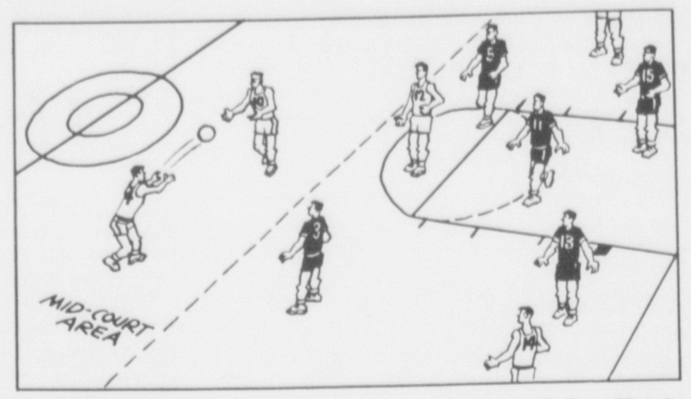

LACK OF ACTION IN MID-COURT

The mid-court area extends from the division line to an imaginary line in its front court which is 28 feet from the end line.

There is lack of sufficient action any time the ball remains in the front court for ten seconds without sufficient opposition.

When the offense has two or more players in the mid-court, at least two defensive players must be in this area and one must attempt to gain control or there is not sufficient action.

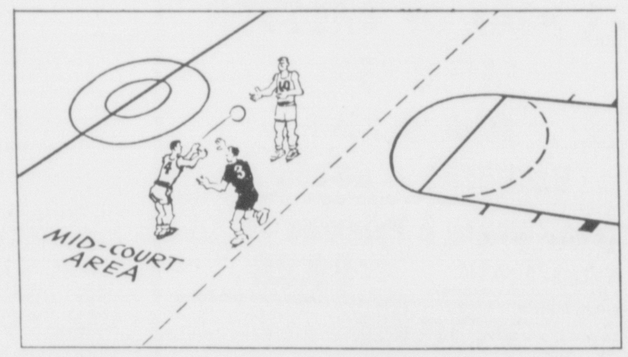

When there is lack of action for ten seconds the responsible team is warned once for a period. After being warned if a team fails to provide action in five seconds a technical foul is called.

The defensive team is standing in a zone defense and the offensive guards playing catch in the mid-court area. Now, the question is, who is responsible for lack of sufficient action? After 10 seconds an official recognizes that there is lack of sufficient action. He then warns the team responsible to initiate action, which is the team that is behind in the score; and if the score should be tied, it is the responsibility of the defense to initiate the action. The team responsibile is warned to initiate action and if the team doesn't initiate action within 5 seconds, it is a technical foul.

When the score is tied or the defense is behind, the responsibility is on the defense to provide action. After "A" keeps the ball in mid-court for ten (10) seconds the referee points in the direction the defense must move to provide action and calls out in a clear, clarion voice, "Play ball."

There are two offensive men in the mid-court area and only one defensive man goes out to pursue the ball. When the defense is responsible for action and the offense has two men in mid-court with the ball, the defense must have at least two men in this area. They are never required to have more than two in the mid-court area.

Bell City JV, Dexter To Stoddard's Finals

By GEORGE SMITH

ESSEX—Wednesday night was a rough night for the favorites as the junior varsity team from Woodland found the Bell City team too hot to handle and were upset in the opening game 40 to 37. Although the first game was exciting in its own right, the varsity match between number one seeded Dexter and the fourth seeded Bernie Mules was a thrilling game in which both teams gave all they had in an effort to bring home the victory. The Bearcats had to take the scrappy Mules into overtime and even then the game was still up for grabs until the closing seconds. Dexter took the game 47 to 45 in one overtime.

WOODLAND FALLS

The cinderella team of the junior varsity Stoddard County tournament has got to be the Bell City Cubs. Upsetting the number one team in the tournament in the first game the JV unit from Bell City proved to their fans Wednesday night that there will be something to cheer about come Saturday night and the finals of this tournament. Using a third quarter rush led by David Swindell the Bell City Cubs pulled another upset by downing the Woodland Cardinals 40 to 37 in a fast moving ballgame. Leading the scoring attack for the Cubs were David Swindell with 21 and Lee Rendleman who hammered in 13 points. The only Woodland Cardinal to place in double figures was Steve Filer who flipped in 19.

DEXTER POSTS OVERTIME VICTORY

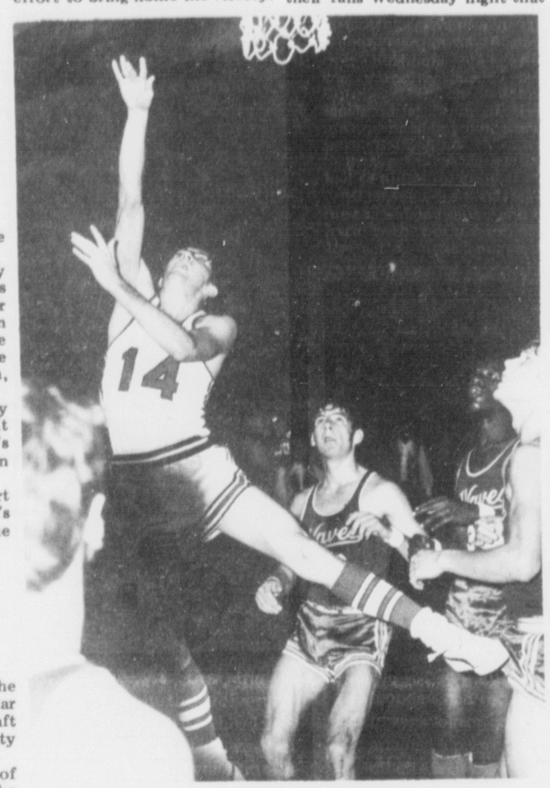

In a game that was close and well fough from the opening tip to the last shot in overtime play, the Bearcats of Dexter prevailed over the scrappy and hustling Bernie Mules. Both teams played their hearts out trying to record the victory and the right to play Saturday night against the winner of the Thursday night ballgame between Advance and Richland. A third quarter rush by the Mules propelled them into the lead, but alas the Dexter offense kept whittling away at the lead and at the end of regulation play the score was tied 41 to 41. Moving into the overtime, Bernie took the tip but no one scored until Randy Northington of Dexter fired in a five foot jump shot with 1:39 remaining in overtime play to put Dexter in the lead. Terry Demaree and Franic Guelthe pumped in 2 points apiece to round out the Bearcat scoring in the overtime play. The only points collected in the extra play by the Bernie quintet were by Sides and Williams who fipped in 2 points each.

Leading the scoring for the Dexter Bearcats were Terry Demaree with 16 and teammate Danny Summers who flipped in 11. The Bernie Mules placed three men in the double figure column, those were Niel Beckman, who led the way with 13, Leslie Brown and Mike Campbell added 11 and 10 points respectively.

Baseball Executives Down On Basketball

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Organized, competitive basketball should be a no-no for major league baseball players, says Bob Howsam and Sparky Anderson.

The general manager and manager of the National League pennant-winning Cincinnati Reds have the scar — a serious injury to star center fielder Bob Tolan — to prove it.

Against the club's wishes, Tolan, Johnny Bench, Pete Rose, Jimmy Stewart, Lee May and Jim Maloney agreed to play a 19-game basketball barnstorming tour this winter.

Tolan tore an Achilles tendon during a basketball game and will be sidelined until June, forcing Howsam to think of contract rule amendments and Anderson to shuffle his outfield talent.

"I think clubs should have the say if players are to play basketball in their contracts. We cannot do that now because of the last negotiations with the players," Howsam said.

"That's one of Marvin Miller's beauts. I'm sure he won't replace Tolan for us," Anderson said of the players' legal counsel who engineered the move that basketball was permitted in current contracts.

Anderson, who led the Reds into the World Series in his first year at the helm, said he would use Hal McRae in left, Pete Rose in center and Bernie Carbo in right if the National League season began today.

Except for two charity contests, the Reds players cancelled the rest of their basketball exhibitions when Tolan was hurt. May, the slugging first baseman, said he thinks basketball is a good idea, however.

"If it's permissible," May said, "I'd play again next year. It keeps you in shape. It's controlled. We had our own referees and it's enjoyable.

"Tolan could have got hurt playing catch with his kids. It's just one of those things," he said.

K.C. Royals Sign Draftees

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The first two choices in the regular phase of the free agent draft have signed with the Kansas City Royals.

Lou Gorman, director of minor league operations for the American League baseball club, announced today that John Wathan, the first pick, and Mike Bauer, the Royals' second choice, have signed contracts.

Wathan, 21, a 6-foot-2, 200-pound catcher from the University of San Diego, was assigned to San Jose of the Class A California League.

Plunkett, Manning 1-2 In Pro Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett, the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, was selected by the Boston Patriots today as the No. 1 pick in the National Football League's college draft.

The Patriots landed Plunkett, holder of the all-time major college records for passing and total offense yardage, after spurning numerous offers to swap the top choice in a package deal for established players.

Plunkett reportedly will seek a $250,000 contract. The Patriots, who drafted first because their 1970 won-lost record was the worst in the league, have another high-salaried quarterback in Joe Kapp.

The New Orleans Saints, picking second, selected quarterback Archie Manning of Mississippi, as expected.

The Houston Oilers picked a third quarterback, Santa Clara's Dan Pastroini.

The first three picks were made within 10 minutes after the 17-round draft session kicked off at 10 a.m. EST at a midtown hotel. Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced the successive quarterback selections.

The Buffalo Bills, picking fourth, broke the quarterback string with the selection of swift J. D. Hill, a wide receiver from Arizona State.

As the New York Jets prepared to make their selection, Rozelle interrupted the proceedings to announce a blockbuster trade in which the Los Angeles Rams dealt six players, including their starting linebacking trio of last season to the Washington Redskins.

Washington, whose coach, George Allen, piloted the Rams last season, gave up linebacker Marlin McKeever, its No. 1 and 3 picks in this year's draft and five more 1972 draft choices.

Going to the Redskins are veteran linebackers Myron Pottios, Jack Pardee and Maxie baughan, defensive tackle Diron Talbert, a 1970 starter, guard John Wilbur and running back Jeff Jordan.

In addition to McKeever and the two high draft choices this year, the Rams will have Washington's third through seventh picks in next year's draft.

Super Soph at Mizzou

COLUMBIA—Not many rookies ever get the opportunity or challenge of playing their first collegiate basketball game against the national defending champions.

That was John Brown's indoctrination -- nine games into Mizzou's 1970-71 schedule. The blond 6-7 Tiger scored 14 points against UCLA at Los Angeles -- shrugging off the effects of a bone fracture in his foot and six weeks of virtual inactivity.

What was it like to break in against the Bruins?

"Not too bad. After I hit that first shot, nothing bothered me very much."

There was speculation that Brown's ailing foot might postpone his competition for one year if Coach Norm Stewart decided to red-shirt him. How did the Dixon, Mo., youth react to the possibility?

"The more I watched the team play, the more I wanted to be in there. I couldn't stay away from it."

At Kansas City, Missouri hit its flattest plateau of the year in the Big Eight tournament -- and Stewart surmised then that his club had not yet adjusted to Brown's presence in the lineup.

"I'm sure this was true," Brown evaluates. "We had learned so much new stuff on offense. I had watched it in practice, but had not executed it in scrimmage situations.

"Now I feel like I'm a part of the team again, and my only problem is still conditioning. I have a tendency to get tired, and hang my head -- but I'll get that corrected before too long."

Now a regular, Brown is averaging 13.3 points a game. Many observers feel that the well-knit rookie has been a steadying influence in Mizzou's surprising 11-4 climb -- and the spotless 3-0 conference mark they will carry into their big road series against Oklahoma and Oklahoma State this weekend.

A muscular in-fighter, Big John hit his seasonal high of 23 points and 11 rebounds in an 84-78 win over Oklahoma here -- and was promptly labeled by Sooner Coach John MacLeod as "one of the most promising young stars in the Big Eight".

Brown knows where he had to polish his game.

"They've been giving me the outside shot -- and I have been working on it. I've got to make 'em guard me, so I can get to the bucket."

What about this third game with Oklahoma -- Mizzou's next conference foe?

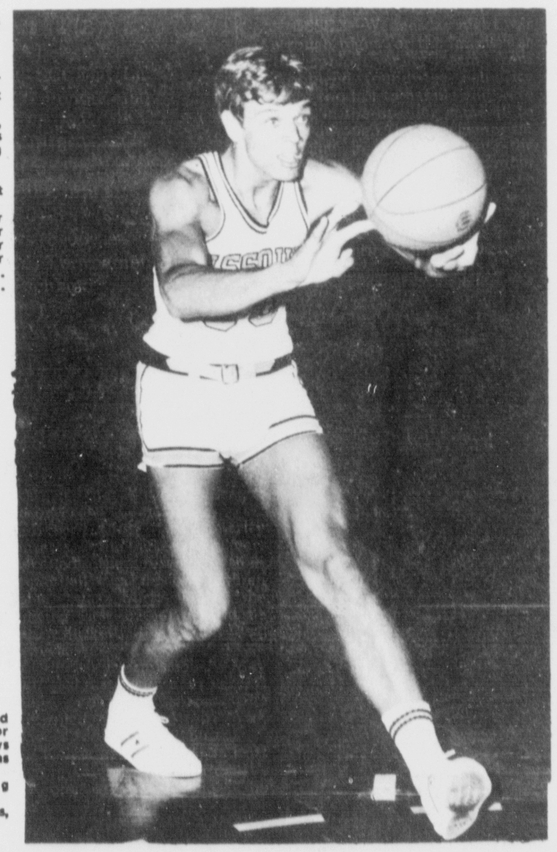

"After Kansas, Oklahoma is probably my next pick as the conference's toughest team.. They're better than many people give them credit for. That Scott Martin is one of the better guards around."

What does Missouri have to do to meet the stiff competition that lies ahead?

"We've got to learn to handle the ball well in the late stages of the game. We manage to play well for about three quarters, but it's a question of keeping our momentum and stamina.

"In the Big Eight, most games always narrow down to the last few minutes. The team that can take care of itself then is going to win it."

Returning to practice after the examination break, Missouri meets the touring Athletes in Action basketball team, composed of former collegians, here Tuesday night at 7:35 p.m.

BIG 6-foot-7 John Brown, one of the Big 8 conferences outstanding sophomore's from the University of Missouri played high school basketball for the 1969 state Class M champion Dixon Bulldogs. He was an instrumental factor that year in the victory over Oran in the controversial title game.

Gas Tax Increase Would Aid Counties

JEFFERSON CITY-A two-cent increase in the state gasoline tax would increase state funds for county road construction and maintenance by 40 per cent, according to figures released today by the Missouri State Highway Commission.

Thomas A. David, Director of Highways, pointed out that any gas tax increase would be shared among the state, counties and cities as under the present formula. That formula, established by constitutional amendment in 1962, gives counties five per cent of the net revenue from the state's motor vehicle fuel tax. The money is channeled through the County Aid Road Trust Fund. Under the program, counties select and carry out their own projects with approval by the State Highway Department.

The two-cent-a-gallon tax increase is part of the State Highway Commission's proposed 12-year, $1.4 billion highway program. Other key features include a bond issue of about $450 million, revisions in car and truck registration fees and increases in operator's license fees and fees for new and duplicate titles.

Major features in the Commission's proposed highway program are:

About 1,850 miles of four lane-divided highways, about 350 miles of ultimate four-lane highways, grade separations at all railroad crossings where four-lane construction is planned, twelve major river and lake crossings, and improvement of the many overburdened facilities in the metropolitan St. Louis and Kansas City areas.

If the increase is approved, David said, counties would receive an estimated $113,827,000 during the next ten-year period, compared to $81,305,000 under the present five-cent tax.

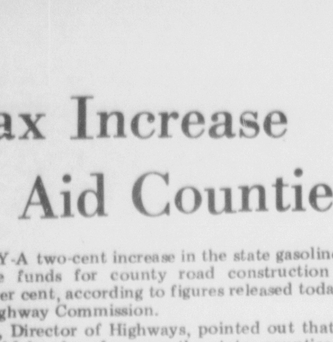

David emphasized that the individual county figures were based on the 1960 census and might vary accordingly under the 1970 census.

The estimate ten-year Cart fund receipts for the present five-cent tax and the proposed seven-cent tax are:

Arguments for 18-Year-Old Vote Heard

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Arguments favoring the right of 18-year-old Missourians to vote were heard Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. No action was taken.

Principal advocate of the right was Jack Matthews, former dean of students at the University of Missouri at Columbia. Matthews told the committee he thought the citizens of this state are ready to pass a Constitutional Amendment to lower the voting age to 18.

Lincoln University President Dr. Walter C. Daniel also praised the young saying "we do not need to fear our young."

"I know what it is to be voiceless," Daniel, a Negro, told the committee.

The committee met to consider the proposed Constitutional Amendment introduced by Sen. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, which followed a U.S. Supreme Court decision which upheld a federal law extending the vote to 18-year-olds in Presidential and Congressional elections.

Two years ago the Senate passed a proposed amendment which would have given 18-yearolds all adult rights — right to enter into contracts, marry, sue and be sued, buy liquor and so on. The proposal got nowhere in the House.

Howard said he preferred that only the right to vote be considered this time.

Grains Panel Favors 20 Per Cent Set-Aside

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grains advisory committee has told the Agriculture Department it favors keeping at 20 per cent the "set-aside" land idled under the 1971 feed program.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clarence D. Palmby said although there was no vote on the issue, he believed most of the 27-member panel favored keeping the 20 per cent requirement.

Palmby's comments were made to newsmen after a daylong closed meeting of the advisory group Tuesday.

The department announced last month a tentative plan for operating the government's 1971 feed grains program for corn and sorghum. It called for farmers to idle 20 per cent of their feed land in exchange for price support and other benefits.

Under the new farm law, a farmer can plant as much of a crop as he chooses once he sets aside from production a portion of his crop land.

Palmby said, however, final decisions on 1971 program details, including the feed grains set-aside, are not expected to be announced before Feb. 1.

A special planting report issued Monday indicated farmers will plant about six per cent more corn this year despite the possibility of leaf blight. The disease helped reduce corn production last year almost 15 per cent from early expectations.

Palmby said administration farm policy makers were generally pleased by the planting report although many of its features were still being studied.

The department hopes for about 4.8 billion bushels of corn this year to help meet livestock feeding and other requirements.

Palmby said advisory committee members indicated they thought farmers expressed their planting intentions on the basis of a 20 per cent set-aside tentatively announced last month.

Hyden Mine Owners Face Possible Penalties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities may seek civil and criminal penalties for the owners of a Kentucky coal mine where an explosion killed 38 men last month, it has been learned.

But strong federal action against mine operators is so rare the Bureau of Mines has been required to clear its moves not only with acting Secretary of the Interior Fred J. Russell, but with the White House as well, administration sources told the Associated Press.

Mines Bureau Director Elbert F. Osborn met with Russell late Tuesday, and the sources said Interior Department representatives would discuss the matter today with the Office of Management and Budget, a key White House satellite.

The explosion occurred Dec. 30 at Hyden, Ky., in twin mines opened last March by brothers Charles and Stanley Finley.

During nine months of operation, the mines were cited by federal inspectors for dozens of health and safety violations.

A Bureau of Mines investigation after the blast drew testimony indicating that primer cord—barred from the mines by law—may have been used inside the Finley mines, igniting coal dust which spread the explosion through the tunnels.

The bureau has completed its inquiry, but officials were still debating their next step late Tuesday.

Mine safety violations could bring large fines but it was learned officials were contemplating also some sort of criminal charges, possibly based on conflicting testimony given at the bureau's hearings.

The administration plans to announce its findings on the Hyden disaster Friday.

The Hyden disaster, ironically, has put Osborn in the same uncomfortable position once occupied by his predecessor, John F. O'Leary.

Four weeks after O'Leary's appointment in 1968, a mine explosion at Mannington, W. Va., killed 78 men.

O'Leary's response to that tragedy was to back strong mine safety legislation. Early last year, President Nixon fired him with one day's notice.

Osborn, formerly vice president for research at Pennsylvania University, took office last Oct. 23 just two months before the Hyden disaster.

$93 Million Added to Plant Costs

NEW MADRID--Union featherbedding, jurisdictional disputes and inflation have added $93 million to the cost of building New Madrid's new generating plant and adjoining Noranda Aluminum Co. facilities, officials said Wednesday.

The soaring costs are a 51 per cent increase over the original estimate of $183.6 million.

New Madrid citizens will vote probably next month on issuing an additional $60 million in revenue bonds to finish the huge generating plant.

NORANDA WILL pick up the padded tab on its facilities, estimated to be in the neighborhood of $17 million.

John Strinich, general manager of Noranda, said featherbedding and jurisdictional disputes were party responsible for the increased costs.

JAMES MILLER, resident manager for Kaiser Engineers Inc. refused to comment.

Strinich said Kaiser investigated reports of featherbedding, drinking and gambling earlier, but he declined to reveal the results.

Hal Hunter Jr., New Madrid County prosecuting attorney, said he, the highway patrol and the sheriff's office are conducting a joint investigation.

He said similar reports had been investigated but no evidence of wrongdoing was found.

Hunter, who was also New Madrid city attorney and was among those instrumental in getting the Noranda company to build in the area, said the added costs in construction will affect electrical rates for future companies that may locate in the 4,100-acre industrial park.

The Park, about eight miles southeast of New Madrid, was developed with $3 million in federal aid.

The labor problems, he said, "came as quite a shock and surprise to all of us."

While citing additional labor costs as a factor, Hunter also blamed inflation for part of the increase in costs.

Route Z Location Approval

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri State Highway Commission approved the final location and preliminary design details for route 1, Stoddard county.

Commission action followed a public hearing held on the improvement which extends from existing route Z east 2.3 miles to route W.

After full consideration of the favorable and adverse economic, social, and environmental effects of the recommended design, the Commission found and determined that the recommended location and design would best serve the interests of the public.

W.H. Shaw, district engineer, indicated final design would be completed. The project will be placed under contract subsequent to receiving the right -of -way which is to be furnished to the State Highway Commission without cost.

Shaw stated the proposed improvement will include bridges over Ditch 40, ditch 37, and Main Ditch 1 and provide through route between the communities of Bernie and Kewanee.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The accumulative enrollment, that is all who have enrolled in our schools during the year even though some may have transferred or dropped out since, has reached a total figure of 5,302 for the fourth month of school ending on January 4, 1971. On that same date 4,949 were actually enrolled and in school. The average daily attendance for the month was 4,461.40. During that month, 69 new students enrolled and 80 were dropped from the attendance rolls.

One likely reason for the excess of dropped students over the newly enrolled was the lessening of the Kaiser Construction Company activity in the New Madrid area. A considerable number of Kaiser employees live or have lived in Sikeston and the completion or near completion of the Noranda activity has necessitated that some of these families move elsewhere for employment, resulting in withdrawal of their children from school.

The annual audit of the school system's financial affairs for the 1969-70 school year was recently completed and accepted by the Board of Education. It was an unqualified audit, completed by the certified public accounting firm of Day, Spitzmiller, & Sisk. Copies of the audit are available for inspection by interested citizens, at the Board of Education Office.

While an audit is required by state law for each two-year period, our Board of Education has it done annually. A full report of income and expenditures in the school budget, which is required to be made to the Missouri State Department of Education, is printed in the Sikeston Daily Standard, following its completion in late July or August of each school year.

While we have not yet completed our evaluation of the faculty In-Service Training Program Workshop conducted at the schools last Friday, preliminary indications are that the activities were very successful.

Over 90% of the parents of elementary school youngsters, grades K-5, reported to the various schools for conferences with their children's teachers. Teachers and principals were enthusiastic in their assessment of these conferences and almost all of the parents seemed to appreciate the opportunity to discuss their child's progress, accomplishments and/or problems, with the teacher. About 1,600 parents reported for the conferences. Some parents who were unable to make the schedule will be given the opportunity to do so, either before or after school, at some later date. Those who find it impossible to make such an arrangement will receive a brief written report, although it can not be nearly as informative as would the parent-teacher conference.

It is probable that another such parent-teacher conference day will be planned for next year.

Middle School faculty members spent the day in observing teacher activity or educational programs in other schools. A report of the result of these visits will be compiled in order to develop ways by which we might utilize some of the ideas or techniques observed, as a possible means of improving our programs.

Senior High School faculty spent the day working on course outlines to improve instructional procedures and develop curriculum materials and also as a part of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools evaluation of our high school, which is shortly to get under way.

The Missouri Advisory Council for Vocational Education visited in our schools Tuesday and Wednesday to observe the vocational programs which the Board of Education maintains for our students and those of neighboring schools. The committee, composed of about 10 lay members, was accompanied by Deputy Commissioner of Education B. W. Robinson of the Missouri State Department of Education and several of the other vocational education department personnel.

This committee assists the Commissioner by advising on matters relating to vocational education in Missouri.

The vocational program, which the Board of Education provides here, is one of the most comprehensive in the state and enrolls the highest percentage of the student body in vocational classes, of any Area School in Missouri.

The post high school program of vocational education has a total enrollment of 72. Of these, 30 are armed services veterans, enrolled under the GI bill. Four vocational rehabilitation students are enrolled and are receiving training provided for handicapped persons.

No local tax funds are used in the post high school program, as its costs are met through tuition payments made by students and by federal funds.

Ex-POW Says Tortures Left Out of Hanoi Films

NEW YORK (AP) — A former American prisoner of war in North Vietnam says Hanoi-released films depicting life in POW camps bear no relation to the torture treatment he had to undergo.

Maj. James Low, who was shot down over North Vietnam in December 1967 and released the following August, commented Tuesday in a television interview on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkhite.

He described a torture in which his captors used a metal bar about 18 inches long and one inch in diameter.

"They put this in my mouth and a guy ... put his knee in my back and pulled this thing back against ... as far back as he could and the pain is excruciating. I never felt a pain worse than that," he said.

"They kept asking me questions and then all of a sudden they got up and pushed me down and took the bar out. They left for maybe another hour or so ... two hours. And then they came back again and the same treatment started again.

"Asking me what target, what target ... they had a big map out on the table and they went through the handcuff and twine routine and this time they really pulled this bar back inside. Blood gushed out from my ear ... ruptures something in there.

"This treatment went on and off for about well, six or seven days. Of course, whenever they were torturing me with this bar and what have you, I screamed because it really was excruciating. It seemed like when they'd leave me they'd go somewhere else and I could hear a person next door screaming, too. The same treatment, I presume it was my partner but I don't know for sure," he said.

Low, now operations officer at McCoy Air Force Base, Fla., was asked if there was any similarity between his treatment at the hands of the North Vietnamese and that shown in Christmas films of American POWs released by Hanoi.

"None at all," he said. "We had no group activity whatsoever. It was a camp regulation that you would not communicate with anyone else and if you did you were punished. And their punishment is not like ours. It's closer to torture when they punish you."

School Aid Hike In Plans for Revenue Sharing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says federal school aid would increase from $2.9 billion to $5.1 billion under the general revenue sharing plan proposed by the President.

Officials say some $2 billion of the increase would be the portion of the proposed $5 billion general revenue-sharing pool which states and local governments would use mainly for public school aid. The remaining $200 million would be new money.

As outlined by administration education officials Tuesday, the states would share the $5.1 billion on the basis of population alone. The biggest states, therefore, would get the largest share.

The money would be funneled through five broad categories of elementary and secondary education spending rather than the present 100 sometimes overlapping, special purpose aid programs. The five categories would be compensatory, impact aid to districts with large numbers of federal employes, vocational, handicapped, and equipment and facilities.

Patterson Urges Spending Lid

JEFFERSON CITY — (AP), — Sen. J.F. Patterson (Dem.), Caruthersville, predicted nothing but financial trouble ahead Monday for state and local governments unless they start living within their income.

He told the Jefferson City Rotary Club it would be even more difficult to make a recent income tax increase permanent, as recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, than it was to get it passed originally for one year in the special legislative session last month.

Even if passed by the Legislature, he said, "I think it only reasonable to assume that opposition to this increase will again put it before the general public for a vote, and I feel it would be defeated again."

That's what happened last April when the voters overwhelmingly rejected an income tax increase at a referendum.

If that happened again, Patterson said, the state would be $38.6 million behind in meeting the governor's budget, counting other revenue shortcomings. He questioned whether the revenue estimates would stand up in the light of recent strikes on the metropolitan areas.

Investigation Up To County Officials

NEW MADRID — Any illegal activities being conducted by union members at construction sites in New Madrid's St. Jude Industrail park should be under jurisdiction of New Madrid county officials, a spokesman in the office of State Attorney General John C. Danforth said.

A member of Local 282 of the Laborers Union disclosed last week that gambling, drinking, stealing, operation of private businesses and featherbedding have been conducted at the construction sites of Noranda Aluminum Inc., and the stream generating plant, both on the industrial tract.

Noranda Aluminum officials say they expect a huge overrun in the cost of its aluminum reduction plant. Kaiser Engineers, primary contractors for both Noranda and the City of New Madrid's steam plant will far exceed original estimates.

New Madrid city officials have learned that an additional $60 million in revenue bonds will have to be issued to complete construction of the 600,000 magawatt steam plant. It is scheduled for completion in April, 1972.

The spokesman in Danforth's office said investigation of any illegal activities at the construction site is the responsibility of New Madrid County Prosecuting Attorney Hal E. Hunter Jr., and County Sheriff W. L. ("Cowboy") Ramsey Jr.

"I can see no way this would come under our jurisdiction," the spokesman said.

Troop E of the State Highway Patrol has been investigating reports of tools and other equipment being stolen from the construction sites. Capt. Wayne C. Brooks, troop commander, said it has turned up nothing.

He pointed out that the investigation conducted by his men has dealth only with thefts and did not include the allegations made by the eight-year member of local 282 who told of illegal activities of the union.

Sheriff Ramsey's office and the patrol are looking into illegal acts at the construction sites disclosed by the union member who was employed at the Noranda site nine months.

The informant said he also worked closely with members of Operating Engineers Local 513 of St. Louis. He said the operators union also practiced featherbedding at the industrial park.

Noranda Aluminum's reduction plant was scheduled to go into operation Dec. 15. It has not begun operation.

Worshiped Flower

The ancient Incas worshiped the lofty sunflower as an emblem of the sun. The plant's seeds were eaten during religious ceremonies, glittering facsimiles of pure gold were carved on temples and priestesses wore them as breastplates.

The bright streak of a meteor is usually about 20 miles above the earth's surface, although larger meteors may appear at a greater distance and approach more closely before being destroyed.

Under Twenty

by KURT LASSEN

A growing wave of student dissatisfaction because they find their studies irrelevant is partially being answered by a new national program called the Industrial Arts Curriculum Project developed at Ohio State University in cooperation with the University of Illinois. The two=year program is specially designed for junior high school students with one year devoted to "The World of Construction" and the other dealing with "The World of Manufacture."

THROUGH THE IACP program, students learn how man plans, organizes and controls materials, tools, techniuqes and people to produce such goods as buildings, bridges, highways, dams, automobiles, furniture, clothing, appliances and utilities. The students themselves produce products, using methods that simulate those at the site or in the factory. For example, each student makes a complete and detailed plan for his dream home and then constructs a scale model of it.

The program was developed to make more meaningful the shop experiences of students and rather than produce such items as bookends and bird houses, they will get experience more closely related to future careers in construction and manufacturing, both of which areas expect tremendous expansion between now and the end of the century.

In field testing conducted over the last three years, the program has been met with great interest by junior high school students and in 1971, the program is ready for use in schools who wish to provide experiences and knowledge about the man-made world much like science does the natural world.

Junior high students have learned how steel structures are erected by performing rigging, handling materials and simulating actual construction. In a "work gang" they have built wooden frame structures and installed ducting, plumbing and wiring systems to learn construction techniques. The completely designed program uses films including "Careers in Carpentry" produced by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Information about the program can be obtained, from IACP headquarters at The Ohio State University, 1712 Neil Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43210.

Age Suitable Standard For Driver Tests

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Charley, over 60 years of age, was healthy as a breath of fresh air and as strong as a piece of Limburger cheese. Consequently, when he received a notice from the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles advising him that all licensed drivers over 60 had to appear for re-examination, he blew a fuse.

"IT's dsicrimination," he protested. "You can't compel one age group to appear," he told the commissioner," and not another. The fact is, I'm a better driver than all those young rock n' rollers put together. The trouble is, you peoples just don't respect age unless its bottled."

The commissioner however, insisted upon the re-examination and Charley refused. What's more, he took the matter to court.

"There's no discrimination involved," was the commissions's defense. "It's just that when a person reaches 60 he tends to go backwards as he advances. For safety reasons, they have to be checked. That's not discrimination, that's caution."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold that re-examination was discriminatory?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a person's right to drive depends upon his fitness; that since it would be too difficult to make frequent tests of everybody, arranging tests based upon age, accidents, violations and other suitable standards was not unreasonable.

Based upon a 1962 New Jersey Superior Court, App. Div., Decision.

SHOW & TELL

I must begin by apologizing to the many people who attended the Malco's presentation of There's a Girl in My Soup. I laughed so loud and so long last night, that I stuck out like a sore thumb.

The movie is delightfully entertaining and if you aren't a Peter Sellers and Goldie Hawn fan now, you will be when the flick is over.

The story features Sellers as truly a man's man. Very similar to myself I might add. He is a womanizer from the word go. Or from any other word as far as that goes. He wines 'em, dines 'em, and so on and so on.

Goldie plays a 19-year-old freak which fits her personality fairly well. She is a panic. If you've never had the opportunity to see Goldie in any type of dramatic role this is your golden opportunity. Notice the pun?

The movie has rich overtones of the old theme that money can't buy happiness. Sellers is rich but can't get Goldie. I'm poor and I can't get her either. Must be my breath.

I don't want to ruin it for you, but the ending is not at all what I anticipated. It wasn't a bad ending or anything like that, but it wasn't the regular Hollywood-type ending. Bye For Now. P.S.--Goldie goes nude.

The Prayer from the upper room

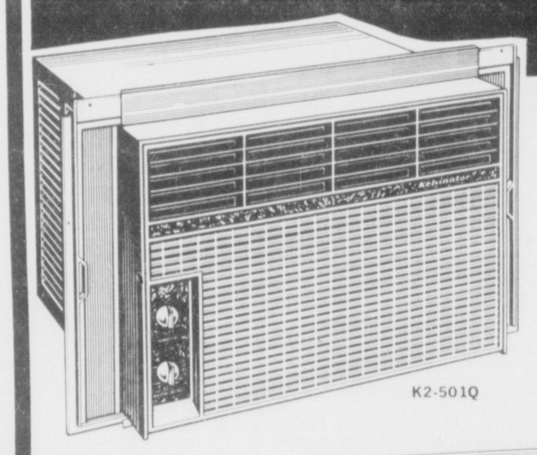

I will sing with the spirit, and I will sing with the understanding also. (I Corinthians 14:15)

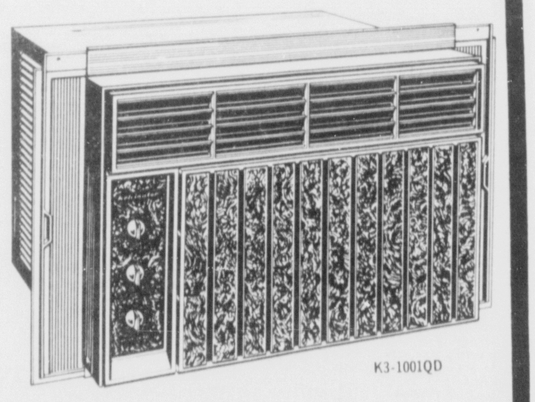

PRAYER: O loving Father, we thank You for friends who have drawn us near to You. We ask that we may show love and joy to any who may be worried or sad. Through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

The name Peter Funk is associated with the custom of using the name for a person employed at an auction to offer bogus bids in order to raise the price.

Rail Passenger System Proposal Expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today expanded the new national rail passenger system significantly to include five additional pairs of cities.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe modified his original proposal made 60 days ago to include these additional routes: New Orleans to Los Angeles, Seattle to San Diego, New York to Kansas City, Washington to Chicago, and NorfolkNewport News, Va. to Cincinnati.

In addition, Volpe said he meant his initial recommendations to make clear that Tampa-St. Petersburg would be included as end points on rail passenger runs from New York to Florida.

The expanded system as announced Thursday will go into effect May 1 when a new quasigovernment National Rail Passenger Corp., commonly known as Railpax, will take over most passenger service from ailing railroads.

Volpe declined, however, to designate what routes would be used and cities served between the designated end point cities. He had been urged to do this by, among others, the Interstate Commerce Commission.

County Officials Aid Asked

KANSAS CITY (AP)–Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, apparent dean of the promised massivepublic education program on President Nixon's government reforms, is calling on county officials for help in a return to "dynamic federalism."

In Kansas City where Agnew addressed about 200 enthusiastic county officials, Lawrence K. Roos, Republican supervisor of St. Louis County, said, "No greater pressure could be exerted on Congress for passage of revenue-sharing than that from county officials."

Board Formed By Hearnes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes sent the Legislature today copies of his executive orders creating a new board of environmental protection and putting employes of the Public Service Commission and the division of liquor control under the state merit system.

He told the Legislature earlier of his plans and today's actions put them into effect, subject to legislative veto.

Youths to Eye City Government

By SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

EAST PRAIRIE—In an effort to involve youth in community affairs and increase their awareness of the problems of local government, 12 students of the high school were nominated by the school administration to serve city organizations as youth members.

Two of the students will be appointed by the city as non-voting members of the city council, community betterment committee, local housing authority, citizens' advisory committee, parks and recreation commission, planning and zoning commission and other organizations.

The youth members will be appointed in May of their junior year of high school, to serve for one year.

This first year, the students will be nominated and appointed in February to serve until the end of the next school year.

First nominees in the program and their assignments: citizen's advisory commission, Janie Hogue and Linda Dill, alternate, Jean Savell; planning and zoning commission, Robert Abernathy and Mike Hogan, alternate, Gary Baker; park and recreation commission, Chuck Davis and Kenny Walton, alternate, Mike Hogan; community betterment committee, Ronnie Marks and Ronnie Wallace, alternate, David Scott; city council, David Scott and Jim Davis, alternate Robert Abernathy.
